BECKER DIES FORGIVING ALL

PONTIFF IN PEACE PLEA TO RULERS

By International News Service.

ROME, July 30.—Pope Benedict XV. has issued an appeal to the rulers of the belligerent powers to bring the war to an end. The appeal, which was sent out by the Vatican yesterday, is published today in the Osservatore Romano.

Pope Benedict reviews at length the events of the past year, dwelling upon the absence of attention which his peace entreaties have secured.

"But today, the sad anniversary of the outbreak of this tremendous conflagration, a more ardent plea arises from our hearts for a sudden cessation of hostilities," says the Pope. "The longer we cry for peace the more loudly may this cry reach the people of neutral countries and their rulers, inducing them to higher counsels."

"NATIONS NEVER DIE."

The Pope invites the rulers of the powers at war to abandon the idea of mutual annihilation, as nations never die, but always prepare for revenge.

"Why not begin now to exchange views with the idea of ending the conflict?" asks the pontiff. "Blessed is he who will first raise the olive branch.

"The abundant wealth wherewith our creator endowed these lands enables them to continue in war, but at what a price! Thousands of young lives are being snuffed out daily. Can the ruins of so many cities and villages and monuments erected by genius in commemoration of the faith of our forefathers, answer the bitter tears shed within the privacy of home or at the foot of altars? No, that cannot be. The price of the struggle is too high.

"HEED OUR PRAYER."

"Brotherly blood is being shed on land and sea. The most beautiful regions of Europe, this garden of the world, are strewn with dead and ruins. Where once smiled factories and vineyards and fruitful fields are now only frightful guns of war pouring forth their ruin and death.

"You are assuming before God and man tremendous responsibilities. O, you warriors, heed our prayer. Hark to the paternal voice of the Vicar of the Eternal and Supreme Judge before whom all shall be called to account.

"In the Holy Name of God, our Heavenly Father, and Lord Jesus, whose blessed blood was given as the price for human salvation, we beseech you whom Divine Providence placed at the heads of the belligerent nations, to end the bloody carnage which for a year has dishonored Europe."

The Pope ends by extending his blessing to all who are working for peace, be they Catholic or Protestant.

POPE'S APPEAL TO RULERS TO END WAR IN EUROPE

"In the Holy Name of God, our Heavenly Father, and Lord Jesus, whose blessed blood was given as the price of human salvation, we beseech you whom Divine Providence has placed at the heads of the belligerent nations, to end the bloody carnage which for a year has dishonored Europe."

The foregoing is the concluding paragraph of a new appeal which Pope Benedict XV. has issued to the rulers of the belligerent powers of Europe to bring about peace. It was issued yesterday, and is published today in the Osservatore Romano, according to cable dispatches from Rome to the AMERICAN.

Chicago Mayor Gets After the Undertakers

CHICAGO, July 30. — Mayor Thompson today went on the warpath after undertakers who were overcharging the relatives of the Eastland victims. The executive made a personal investigation of the case of Eleanardo Grece, who lost his life in the disaster.

The Mayor found Grece's widow and two children living with other poverty-stricken families in a flat without money and but little food. Mayor Thompson came away with a bill for $284, which had been sent to the widow for the burial of her husband. He ordered the undertaker who submitted the bill to show cause why his license should not be revoked.

Open Brook Sewers to Be Eliminated

Plans for the elimination of all open brok sewers in the city within three years, at an estimated cost of $1,200,000, were decided upon at a conference between Mayor Curley and Commissioner of Public Works Murphy today. This includes two miles of the Stony Brook sewer, and almost a mile of the Davenport Brook sewer in the Fenway and Dorchester districts.

Year More on Alien Soil, Says Kaiser

THE HAGUE, July 30.—The Germans will still be fighting on foreign soil a year from now, according to a prediction by Kaiser Wilhelm, as reported today by the Nieuwe Courant. A letter from a German officer contained the following:

"The Kaiser lately visited our corps and said: 'Dear comrades, you probably will see once more the roses blooming in the enemy's country.'"

Tague Protests Vande Vert for Job

Congressman Peter F. Tague of Charlestown today sent a letter of protest to Postmaster-General Burleson against the appointment of N. A. Vande Vert of Chicago as superintendent of railway mails for the New England division.

PROTEST DELAY ON HONOR TO MRS. GUILD

The action of the Executive Council in holding up for five weeks the confirmation of the appointment of Mrs. Curtis Guild to the State Board of Charity has provoked a "storm of protest" from Mrs. Guild's friends, according to the Governor's secretary, Thomas H. Connelly.

Secretary Connelly admitted today that scores of complaints have been received at the Governor's office.

Mrs. Guild's appointment is one of the twenty-five made by the Governor before his departure for San Francisco that have been held up by the council, all because of the Governor's failure to reappoint Carleton H. Parsons as clerk of the police court of Gloucester. The Governor told the council that many complaints had been received against Mr. Parsons for his political activities.

Police Hunt Dog with Bullet Wound

The Waltham police today searched for a dog with a bullet in his body. They want to put him out of misery. The dog was shot by Thomas F. Mullen, a night watchman of Myrtle street, who found two dogs in his hen coop, surrounded by dead hens. He killed one dog and hit the second, but it got away.

Cardinal Makes Two Appointments

Rev. William E. Conroy, D. D., has been appointed by Cardinal O'Connell an assistant priest at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. Cardinal O'Connell has appointed Rev. Louis F. Kelleher, D. D., recently ordained in Rome, temporary assistant to Rev. Mark E. Madden, pastor of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Hough's Neck.

Winchester Arms Co. Makes Concessions

NEW HAVEN, July 30.—Anticipating possible demands upon them for increased wages or shorter hours, the Winchester Repeating Arms Company today announced a voluntary reduction of working time from 55 hours to 48 hours per week, beginning Aug. 15, all rates for piecework and hourly work to be increased so as to yield the same pay in 48 hours as at present in 55 hours.

Evacuating Warsaw, Report

GALLIVAN QUITS HEALTH BOARD

SAY CZAR'S ARMY IS IN RETREAT

By HERBERT TEMPLE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, July 30.—Evacuation of Warsaw and the entire line of the Vistula River defenses in Poland has been begun by the Russian troops, according to unofficial but reliable reports received here from Petrograd today. The Germans in great numbers are reported to be at the very gates of the Polish capital.

The Czar's troops are said to be withdrawing in perfect order, taking with them their artillery and great stores of war munitions.

Warsaw, Ivangorod and Novo Georgievsk are understood to be still garrisoned, but only enough troops have been left there to protect the general retreat of the main forces.

Official announcement of the evacuation of Warsaw is expected from Petrograd as soon as the Russian armies have successfully executed their retreat to the second line of defence on the front extending from Kovno, on the Niemen, through Grodno to Brest Litovsk on the Bug.

The Russian abandonment of the Vistula is attributed to the same fact that caused their retreat in Galicia—lack of ammunition.

By the time the Germans reach the new line of Russian defense, if they are able to continue their advance immediately, the Czar's field commanders hope that this lack of munitions will be removed.

By falling back to the Niemen-Bug line the Russians are shortening their front. This will permit the dispatch of troops to the Baltic region and the Galicia-Poland frontier, where the right and left wings of the Russian armies are under heavy pressure.

PETROGRAD VIEWS WARSAW WITHDRAWAL WITH CALMNESS

PETROGRAD, July 30.—Grand Duke Nicholas and his armies have escaped the trap set by the German general staff.

While it is well understood that Warsaw and all that part of Poland west of the Bug River are lost to Russia, there is no sign of panic here. There is instead a feeling of grim confidence that Russia's vast resources, which are unsurpassed, will yet be the deciding factor in the war.

Late reports from the front characterize the fighting in the Narew region as rear guard engagements, in which the Russians have been uniformly successful.

This indicates that the Czar's forces have kept open their lines of communication, and that neither Von Hindenburg nor Von Mackensen has been able to cut the railway lines necessary for a successful withdrawal from the Vistula front.

RESIGNS AS NEW HEAD IS NAMED

Dr. William J. Gallivan today sent his resignation to Mayor Curley as a member of the Board of Health and head of the child hygiene division of the Boston health service. Dr. Gallivan asked that the resignation take effect immediately. Mayor Curley accepted the resignation at once.

News of the resignation caused quite a stir in City Hall circles. Though no reason was given by Dr. Gallivan, it was stated that his desire to retire was the direct result of an old "feud" between himself and Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, who was yesterday appointed Boston's new health commissioner by Mayor Curley.

FRICTION DEVELOPS.

For a long time Dr. Gallivan and Dr. Mahoney have not spoken to one another, except on business.

Dr. Gallivan became a member of the board in 1913. Later friction developed, and since that time the only words that have passed between Dr. Gallivan on one side and Dr. Mahoney and Dr. P. H. Mullowney, the other two members of the health board, have been official.

The resignation of Dr. Gallivan, who is a brother of Congressman Gallivan, did not greatly surprise some of those on the inside at City Hall.

They explained that they had expected Dr. Gallivan's retirement the minute Dr. Mahoney was appointed as the $7,500 health commissioner.

Dr. Mahoney has the appointing of five deputy health commissioners, and

Warden Osborne and Agent in Fight

OSSINING, N. Y., July 30.—Following the execution of Charles Becker at Sing Sing today, Warden Thomas Mott Osborne got into a fight with Patrick McDonald, confidential agent of Superintendent of Prisons Riley, over the possession of private papers. McDonald was arrested charged with assault. He will get a hearing on Monday.

Reward of $100 in Ruined Plant Case

The greenhouse of H. O. Underwood, a wealthy Boston dealer in canned meats, was broken into and the tops of hundreds of chysanthemums struck off. Nothing was stolen. Mr. Underwood today offered a reward of $100 for the culprits.

Workmen Fall 70 Feet Into Tank and Climb Back

Three workmen fell seventy feet from the top of a newly-finished gas tank of the Lynn Gas and Electric Company at Lynn today and escaped with their lives.

The injured are Daniel McDonald of Medford, James Brown of Cambridge and James Flynn of Somerville.

They were working on the inside of the tank when the scaffolding gave away.

The accident was not known until McDonald and Brown made their way back to the top and down the outside. Workmen hoisted Flynn, who was the most seriously injured, to the top of the tank and then lowered him outside.

THE HAGUE, July 30.—The first chamber of the Dutch Parliament today passed a bill increasing the Landsturm.

BITTERNESS LOST ON WAY TO CHAIR

OSSINING, N. Y., July 30. — Charles Becker left a message of forgiveness to all before he was electrocuted in the death house at Sing Sing Prison at 5:45 o'clock this morning.

He disclaimed any bitterness of heart and declared confidence that he would join his mother in heaven.

This message was spoken to Rev. Father Curry, his personal chaplain. Just before he was led from the death cell to the chair the former police lieutenant, who was about to die for procuring the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the Manhattan gambler, said to the priest:

"Father, I go to my death with no bitterness in my heart. If any man has harmed me I heartily forgive him. Time is passing quickly, and soon I shall be no more, but I am happy as I think that I shall soon be with my sainted mother in heaven."

Twenty persons witnessed the execution. Outside the prison a crowd, 1,500 or more, waited for the word that Becker had paid the price.

Becker was pronounced dead by Dr. C. W. Farr, prison physician, at 5:53:30 o'clock. Three shocks were given.

WIFE'S PICTURE PINNED ON SHIRT.

Dr. Farr issued the following official figures after the execution:

Becker entered death chamber at 5:42 a. m. Strapped to death chair at 5:43. First contact 5:44 to 5:45. Second contact of ten seconds' duration beginning at 5:47. Third contact of five seconds' duration beginning at 5:49. Pronounced dead at 5:53½.

Shortly before the execution Becker pinned to his rough prison shirt, just above his heart, a picture of Mrs. Becker. It was there when he went to the chair.

He seemed to be the coolest man in the death chamber as he took his seat in the death chair in which he had been strapped thirteen years ago as a joke.

Becker was the first man to die in a double execution which took place in Sing Sing in the gray of a humid, foggy morning.

Sam Haynes, a negro murderer, who slew a woman in Putnam County, followed him to the chair, and at 6:10 the corpses of the two men, one a former official in the police department of America's greatest city, and the other a cruel, ignorant negro laborer, were stretched side by side upon a marble slab in the prison morgue.

CHARLES BECKER DIES IN CHAIR AT SING SING PRISON

There were twenty witnesses in the death chamber seated on two long benches in the grim, bare room. Directly in front of these benches is the death chair.

By 5:40 o'clock they were on hand, most of them tense and white faced, with their eyes riveted on the little green door through which the condemned pass as they enter the chamber of death.

Others watched as though fascinated by the black straps and the other fatal harness which hangs on the chair.

CARRIED CRUCIFIX.

At 5:43 o'clock the little green door swung open noiselessly. There was a gasp as Becker stood upon the treshold. In his hand he carried a crucifix which was grasped so tightly that the knuckles were white.

He wore an ill-fitting black suit, which was wrinkled as though he had been sleeping in it. A white soft shirt, open at the throat, showed up in strong contrast. Becker's hair was cropped close to his head and his face was clean shaven.

The right trouser leg was slit from the bottom to the knee in order that the electrode might be strapped against the bare flesh. The underclothing was also slit, and this, as well as the leg of the trousers, was rolled to the knee so tightly that the veins stood out upon the bare flesh.

Becker's left hand hung down at his side. He opened and shut it several times, as though this action helped him to retain control of himself.

Immediately behind Becker stood his spiritual adviser, the Rev. Dr. Cashin, the Roman Catholic chaplain at Sing Sing, and the Rev. Fr. Curry. Following the priests was Deputy Warden Charles H. Johnson, who came in with Becker at the doomed man's request.

Becker glanced uneasily about the room. Then his eyes fell upon the window, and he looked out into the gray, foggy morning. It was his last living glance upon the living world.

'INNOCENT,' DYING WORD OF BECKER

OSSINING, July 30.—Becker's dying statement issued at 4:30 a. m. today is as follows:

My dying declaration:

Gentlemen, I stand before you in my full senses, knowing that no power on earth can save me from the grave that is to receive me.

In the face of that, in the teeth of those who condemned me and in the presence of my God and your God I proclaim my absolute innocence of the foul crime for which I must die.

You are now about to witness my destruction by the State, which is organized to protect the lives of the innocent.

May Almighty God pardon every one who has contributed in any degree to my untimely death.

And now on the brink of my grave I declare to the world that I am proud to have been the husband of the purest, noblest woman that ever lived, Helen Becker.

This acknowledgment is the only legacy I leave her. I bid you all good-bye. Father, I am ready to go. Amen.

Becker's lips moved and he murmured so quickly that he could barely be heard: "Have mercy on us."

This was repeated time after time. Half way to the chair Becker was heard to say:

"Jesus, most humbly I give thee my heart and soul."

In front of the chair Becker squared his shoulders and without moving his feet glanced at it over his shoulder.

"I believe in my God," muttered the condemned man. "I love thee with my whole heart."

Becker's knees seemed to sag and he sat down suddenly. Six keepers and assistants surrounded the prisoner as he took his seat. They busied themselves at once, but notwithstanding their haste the suspense was dreadful.

LAST INVOCATION.

As Becker raised both his arms to allow a strap to be placed around his waist he intoned softly:

"Jesus, have mercy on us. Have mercy on us, dear Jesus."

The prisoner's eyes were widely opened and he glanced about the room, but there was an emptiness in them which led more than one person to believe that a merciful injection of morphine had been given before he left his cell.

Becker's head was turned toward the ceiling as the black helmet was strapped on. His lips murmured, but the words could not be heard.

An attendant who adjusted the plate-strap, which was fastened with metal against the skin, was affected so greatly that his hands trembled and he dropped it. In an instant, however, he had recovered himself and all was ready for the fatal shock.

DEATH IS QUICK.

Becker sat with his head tilted backward. The lower half of his face was visible and his lips moved restlessly all the time. His arms rested upon his knees and in his right hand he still grasped the little cross.

Then came the death current. Becker made no sound, but his body heaved in the chair and the straps creaked and groaned. The hands clasped, contracted and then relaxed in the agony of death and the crucifix fell to the floor. The only other sounds were from the labored breathing of the spectators and the murmurs of fright which could not be repressed.

The first application of the current was followed by a second, then a third.

The physician who had made the usual tests by stethoscope and pulse pronounced the man dead.

Becker had expiated his crime.

The law had been satisfied.

During his last day of life Becker fought with the priests who were with him over the language of his formal statement denouncing Governor Whitman.

Fathers Cashin and Curry urged him to modify it. "The world has a bad enough impression of you now, Charlie," they argued.

Becker was stubborn. He raved over his wrongs, of Whitman's "persecution," declared it was beyond his power to express his hatred for the Governor.

Warden Osborne was summoned and joined his arguments to those of the priests. Becker finally agreed to leave it to his counsel.

They came to the prison, spent three hours with Becker and persuaded him to modify the wording of his defence.

HIS LAST HOURS.

Becker's last hours were given to a heart-rending farewell with his loyal wife, to prayer and the preparation of statements to be given out after his death.

Although the doomed man raged for hours yesterday against Governor Whitman, who, as prosecuting attorney of New York County, had convicted him of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, he did not mention Mr. Whitman's name during the early morning today.

WENT TO CELL AT FOUR.

Father Curry went to Becker's cell at 4 o'clock to shrive him. Afterwards, in telling of the condemned man's final hours, Father Curry broke down and wept. He could not finish the recital.

"Becker was very calm in his cell," said Father Cashin. "We went to him at 4 o'clock and found him ready for the ordeal.

"Of course sleep was out of the question, although Becker had lain upon his cot for an hour or two. Becker had embraced the Roman Catholic faith and said he was ready to die. He asked us to repeat the 'Salve Regina,' and accompanied us as we went over it three times. Becker pinned a picture of his wife upon his shirt over his heart. He could not speak of her without emotion. It was sad that such a loving couple had to part.

"Becker died bravely and he died a Christian."

It was 1 o'clock when he separated with a last clinging embrace from his wife, who had wasted some of the hours she might have spent with him in seeking out the Governor of the State and making a final, futile appeal for his life.

He was a broken man, as she was a broken woman. His big, stalwart frame was shaken with sobs.

ALONE WITH PRIESTS.

As Mrs. Becker went away from the office of the principal keeper, to which she had been led at 11:25 o'clock, the doomed man was taken back to his cell in the death house.

There Father Cashin and Father Curry, his spiritual advisers, talked and prayed with him and tried to put him into a frame of mind in which he could make his final confession.

Hours before he had said good-by to his two brothers, John and Jackson, and his sister, Kate Genigher. Now his wife was gone.

Becker began to worry about his wife at 10:30. He asked Deputy Warden Johnson whether he had heard any news and Mr. Johnson sent back word that Mrs. Becker was expected by 11 o'clock; that she and John B. Johnston, one of Becker's lawyers, had left Poughkeepsie in a taxicab and that she should be in Sing Sing soon.

But Becker became suspicious. He demanded to know whether they were withholding news. He argued that his wife had but 60 miles to travel and that as she left Poughkeepsie at 7:45 she should have been in Ossining within two hours at least.

At 11 o'clock she had not arrived and Becker began to make it plain that worry for her was going to take precedence over his religious preparations for death.

Mrs. Becker arrived at the prison at 11:25. She was completely broken. She had to be helped out of the taxicab. The lawyer and Deputy Warden Johnson escorted her to the porch of the warden's office and back to the death house, where Fr. Cashin was praying with Becker.

She began to cry when she entered the long corridor. But, woman-like, she stopped, adjusted her hair and hat, which had grown awry on her long taxicab ride from Poughkeepsie. At the entrance of the death house she was told she could see her husband in the principal keeper's office, and she returned to the main prison.

Her delay in reaching Sing Sing was due to the fact that the driver of the taxi had lost his way and had to make a twenty-mile detour.

Becker came into the principal keeper's office in the garments he wore in the chair. His head was bowed and his hands extended toward the woman. She looked at his clothing and stepped back.

WEEP TOGETHER.

"My God, Charlie," she cried. "I can't look."

"You have been a brave little woman," Becker replied. "Be brave now."

She ran to him and literally threw herself upon him. He clutched her to his breast and together they wept.

"What kept you? What kept you?" he asked.

"I don't know, but oh, it was a long time. What time is it? she queried.

They told her it was 11:30. Becker pushed her into a chair and began to talk rapidly. There were two guards present and Mr. Johnson stood at the door.

Mrs. Becker, accompanied by George Lynch, her brother, and John B. Johnston, started to leave the prison for New York at 1:15 a. m. A taxicab was awaiting them. They were to be taken to the village in Warden Osborne's motor, where they were to be transferred to the smaller machine.

Mrs. Becker had regained her wonted composure. She was dry-eyed and erect. As she bade her husband a final farewell she said:

"I know you are innocent, Charlie, and that gives me strength."

Just as Mrs. Becker was about to enter the motor she broke.

"I can't, I can't!" she wailed.

"Send the car away for a little while."

At 1:30 a. m. Deputy Warden Johnson anounced that Becker had prepared a statement containing about 100 words, to be made public after his death. Becker retained the statement in his cell until his march to the death chamber. He refused to intimate what was in it.

Earlier Becker was busy with a statement to Governor Whitman, denying he had ever offered to plead guilty in the second degree. He raved as he wrote. He knew that his wife had gone to see the Governor and beg that his life be spared.

OSBORNE REPORTS.

Warden Thomas M. Osborne was not at Sing Sing when the double execution took place. He returned to the prison shortly afterward, however, and sent following telegram to Governor Whitman at Albany:

"Charles Becker and Samuel Haynes were executed at the prison today in compliance with the law."

Dr. William O. Stillman, of Auburn prison, who assisted in performing the autopsy, afterwards issued the following statement:

"I noticed no visible effect upon the vital organs of Becker's body. Becker was an abnormally powerful man and the way he resisted the current was remarkable. Of course he had burns on the inside of one knee and on his temples, but that was to be expected from the 1800 volts current."

It was said that Becker's body would arrive in New York late in the day. Funeral services will be held at the Church of St. Nicholas in the Bronx next Monday morning. The body will be buried in Woodlawn cemetery, beside that of Becker's child.

WHITMAN TOUCHED, BUT FIRMLY REFUSES PLEA OF MRS. BECKER

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 30.—Governor Whitman stood firm as Mrs. Becker tearfully begged for mercy and the life of her husband.

"I know my husband is no saint, but he is not a murderer," Mrs. Becker told the Governor.

For half an hour the Governor listened to the pleading of the brave, loyal wife of the doomed man.

The Governor went from his own rooms to the quaint old parlor of the Nelson House. There, in the dim light, he found her huddled in a chair by the window.

CROWD ABOUT HOTEL.

In the street under the window and down the lobby of the hotel a curious crowd of 1,500 persons waited to hear the Governor's decision and to catch a glimpse of Mrs. Becker.

"Mrs. Becker I am willing to listen to anything you have to say," Governor Whitman told her as he entered the door. "If anything new is to be told you may tell it now. And with assurance that the confidence will be respected.

"No, there is nothing new; nothing that I can tell you except that I know my husband is not a murderer. Won't you save him and give us a chance? Time will prove he is not guilty," Mrs. Becker pleaded.

Mrs. Becker spoke in a low tone. She was crying softly when the Governor came into the room and though she made a brave effort to control herself, she broke many times in that half hour of pleading.

The Governor walked up and down the little room with his hands behind his back and his "fighting" jaw set, but when he spoke, which was not frequently, his voice was none too firm. Neither Major Moore, his aide, nor Mr. Johnstone, of counsel for Becker, spoke in the course of the half hour.

"I am sorry I cannot help you, but I must do my duty," was all that the Governor said after his first statement to Mrs. Becker.

The light of day had gone with the little woman's hope as the Governor at last ended the interview with this final statement:

"It is hard to tell you so, but I cannot do anything. I am sorry for you and I am sorry for your husband, but I must do my duty."

Prior to seeing Mrs. Becker the Governor conferred for more than an hour with Mr. Johnston. The attorney appealed for a reprieve in order that the case might be taken to the Court of Appeals and also asked the Governor to permit former Justices Edgar M. Cullen and Charles Andrews to pass on the appeal for a commutation or reprieve as specially appointed commissioners. The executive declined both requests. When asked to grant a reprieve, that new evidence might be submitted, the Governor said there was none.

Throughout the day, both in the hotel and on the trains, Mrs. Becker was silent, seldom speaking, even to Mr. Johnston. Garbed in a black taffeta suit and a black hat trimmed with white wings, she sat quietly in a corner of the hotel gazing out the windows into space.

PRIEST SAYS THAT BELT STRAP WAS NOT PROPERLY ADJUSED

OSSINING, N. Y., July 30.—That the execution of Charles Becker was bungled was the declaration made today by the Rev. Fr. Cashin, Roman Catholic chaplain at Sing Sing.

"When Becker was placed in the chair the belt strap was not properly buckled on the left side," said Father Cashin. "This caused the body to shoot forward when the current was applied. The face turned toward the ceiling and the head slipped inside of the helmet so that the contact was on the forehead instead of upon the top of the head."

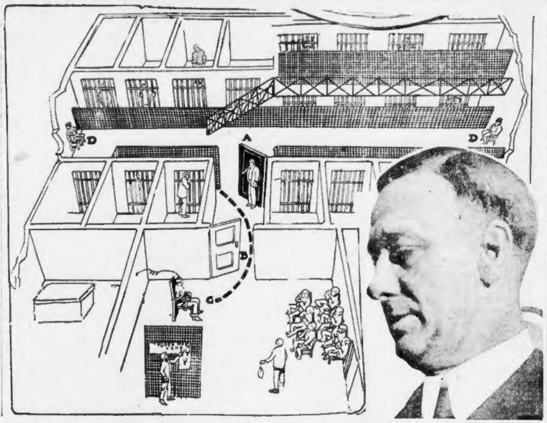
FIVE LIVES IS THE LAW'S TOLL FOR THE LIFE OF HERMAN ROSENTHAL, THE GAMBLER



Charles Becker, the ex-police lieutenant, who paid for the murder of Herman Rosenthal with his life in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison today, and diagram of the execution. In the diagram, D, D, are the guards; A is the entrance to the death chamber; dotted line B represents Becker's course and C shows the position of the chair. The man behind the screen switches on the current as the warden gives the signal by dropping his handkerchief.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The murder for which Charles Becker was executed was committed in the early morning of July 16, 1912, three years and two weeks ago. It was for Becker the climax of a career of police graft. For the four gunmen, executed April 13, 1914, it was all a part of the day's work.

The man murdered, Herman Rosenthal, was a gambler. He was killed for "squealing." He had accused Becker of being a partner in his gambling house.

On July 14 Rosenthal published his damaging story in affidavit form and the following day he promised to appear the next day before District Attorney Whitman and the Grand Jury.

At 1:57 a. m., July 16, the day Herman Rosenthal was to go to the District Attorney's office with his evidence against Becker, the gambler was shot down in front of the then Hotel Metropole in West Forty-third street, just east of Broadway.

The next day, July 17, Shapiro and Libby, owners of a gray automobile in which the murderers of Rosenthal escaped, were arrested. They said a gambler named Jack Rose had hired the car and that Shapiro had driven it. "Bridgie" Webber was also arrested that day and released on bail.

On July 18, Jack Rose, who had been in hiding in Harry Pollok's house since the murder, went to police headquarters and surrendered himself to Second Police Commissioner Dougherty. He was placed under arrest charged with murder.

Rose admitted the next day that he had hired the car and collected four gunmen, members of "Big Jack" Zelig's gang, who had shot Rosenthal.

Webber was rearrested July 21, charged with murder. Sam Paul also was arrested for murder, but later was released. Jack Sullivan was taken into custody as a material witness charged with murder.

On that same day, July 22, the District Attorney named the gunmen who slew Rosenthal—"Gyp the Blood" Horowitz, "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, "Whitey Lewis" Seidenschner and "Dago Frank" Cirofici.

"Dago Frank" was the first of the gunmen captured. He was taken on July 25. Shapiro and Libby had meanwhile told the District Attorney all they knew about the murder. Their stories implicated Rose, Webber, Vallon and Schepps.

On July 26 Jack Sullivan, who was being held as a material witness, was indicted for murder.

On July 29 Rose, Webber and Vallon, who had been wavering under the District Attorney's "pounding" to get the "man higher up," turned State's evidence and named Lieutenant Charles Becker as the real instigator of the Rosenthal murder. Becker was arrested shortly before midnight that night.

"Whitey Lewis," second of the gunmen arrested, was found hiding in the Catskills August 1 and taken to New York charged with murder. Four days later August 5, Becker formally pleaded not guilty before Judge Mulqueen in the Court of General Sessions. The next day Rose gave the District Attorney a thirty-eight-page statement of his relations with Becker, in which he said that he had collected $180,000 in graft from gambling and disorderly resorts for the police lieutenant.

Announcement was made on August 8 that the District Attorney, after a search through the banks and safety deposit vaults of the city had found deposits to Becker's credit aggregating between $50,000 and $100,000. These discoveries tended to corroborate Rose's story of graft.

Sam Schepps, who was said to be a non-accomplice in the murder plot, yet thoroughly acquainted with its machinery, was arrested in Hot Springs, Ark., on August 16. He returned to New York voluntarily to testify in corroboration of Rose, Vallon and Webber.

"Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie," the two remaining gunmen, were arrested on September 14.

With all the known principals in the Rosenthal murder safely behind bars, District Attorney Whitman brought Becker to trial before Justice Goff in the Supreme Court on October 7. On October 24 Becker was found guilty of murder in the first degree. On October 30 he was sentenced to die in the week of December 9, 1912. His case was appealed on December 1 and the appeal acted as a stay of execution until after the decision of the Court of Appeals.

After trial for murder the four gunmen were convicted on November 19, and shortly afterward they were sentenced to die. The gunmen and Becker were all incarcerated in the death house at Sing Sing pending review of their cases by the Court of Appeals. After the gunmen's trial, Rose, Vallon, Webber, Schepps and Sullivan were released.

Little of importance occurred in connection with the Rosenthal murder case during the year 1913. There were motions for new trials for both Becker and the gunmen, rumors of sensational developments that never materialized, announcements by lawyers to the various effect, and sporadic talk about every one concerned in the case.

February 24, 1914, the Court of Appeals set aside the Becker verdict and ordered a new trial for the ex-policeman. The judges of the court split 6 to 1 on this decision, Judge Werner filing the only dissenting opinion. Errors by Justice Goff, the inacceptability of Sam Schepps as a corroborating witness, and failure by the prosecution to establish in fact the "Harlem conference," "the heart of the murder conspiracy," were the principal reasons given by the court for the decision.

On the same day the court affirmed the verdict in the case of the gunmen, specifying that the guilt of the gunmen was not contingent upon that of Becker.

After every effort had been spent in their behalf, the four gunmen were executed at Sing Sing on the morning of April 13.

The second Becker trial was begun before Justice Seabury in the Supreme Court on May 6, 1914.

Never before had a person on trial for the second time for murder in the first degree been convicted in New York county.

But on May 22 Becker was convicted a second time and this time the Court of Appeals confirmed the verdict.

The date of the execution was set for the week beginning July 12.

Shortly after the Court of Appeals denied Becker a third trial W. Bourke Cockran became Becker's chief counsel. He appeared before United States Supreme Court Justice Hughes and argued for a writ of error, which was denied.

Becker's attorneys thereupon appealed to Supreme Court Justice Philbin for a third trial, and on July 23 the justice signed an order for District Attorney Perkins to show cause why a new trial should not be granted. The order was returnable before Supreme Court Justice Ford on July 26.

The justice reserved decision and devoted nearly all of his time for the next two days to going over papers in the case. Shortly after 10 o'clock on the night of July 28 Justice Ford denied the application.

TURKS DEFEAT SLAV FORCES IN CAUCASUS

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Berlin wireless, July 30.—Russian forces in the Caucasus have been defeated by Turkish troops, the War Office announced today. The following official report on operations was issued:

"On the Caucasus front we defeated the Russians, who attempted to fall upon the rear of our right wing. We took 300 prisoners, including seven officers, one cannon and a quantity of ammunition and arms.

"We are vigorously pursuing the enemy, who was defeated on the Brebudo heights.

"On the Dardanelles front there were artillery and rifle duels Wednesday. On Wednesday night a reconnoitring column of our right wing took by a surprise attack part of a hostile trench and captured many guns and quantities of war material.

"On Monday enemy torpedo boats attempted to bombard the coast district near Kereves-Dere, and our left wing near Sedd-el-Bahr."

FRENCH REPEL NEW ATTACK IN VOSGES

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, July 30.—General military activity along the entire front from Flanders to Alsace is reported in today's official communique from the War Office, but it indicates that no decisive conflict has been waged at any point.

A German aviator has thrown four bombs upon Nancy, but the communique states that these caused neither casualties nor damage.

The most severe fighting is going on in the Vosges. The communique characterizes the conflict as one of "great fury," and states that the Germans have been repulsed with very heavy losses at Barren Kopf. The text of the communique follows:

"In Artois, near Souchez and at the 'Labyrinth' there was during the entire night fighting from trench to trench with grenades and petards.

"Between the Oise and the Aisne on the plateau of Quennevieres activity with artillery and bomb-throwers continued. Between Boureuilles and Vauquois and in the forest of Melancourt some mines set off by the enemy caused no damage at all. In the forest of Le Pretre a strong German attack at Croix-des-Carnes was easily repulsed.

"A German aviator threw upon Nancy four bombs, which caused neither casualties nor damage.

"In the Vosges, at Barren Kopf, a conflict continued up to midnight with great fury. A new German counter-attack was repulsed. Our curtains of fire caused the enemy to suffer heavy losses."

EDIZIONE ITALIANA
BOSTON AMERICAN
VOL. 1. BOSTON, 30 LUGLIO, 1915. NO. 33.

Avanzando sull'Isono e preparando l'attacco finale contro Gorizia.

ROMA, 29 luglio.—Gli attacchi degli Italiani contro Gorizia continuano con successo. Si va lentamente ma sicuramente innanzi. Le posizioni conquistate si mantengono. Con le ultime occupazioni di monte San Michele e monte Sei Busi, le forze attaccanti hanno una base di appoggio ottima. Sembra che gli Austriaci siano stati scacciati dalle loro trincee vicino Podgora, ma quelle non possono essere mantenute dagli Italiano per il fuoco incrociato a cui sono soggette.

Gravi Perdite Austriache

Un telegramma da Laibach dice che gli Italiani dal 17 al 29 Luglio hanno avanzato su tutto il fronte di 120 chilometri dell' Isonzo, e su un fronte di sette chilometri negli altri confini.

Le perditeaustriache negli ultimi quindici giorni sono state di 80,000 uomini.

BARILI DI BIRRA CON MUNIZIONI.

L'entrata della Rumania in guerra al fianco degli alleati sembra ormai certa. Essa spiega una grandissima attivita' nel sorprendere il materiale di contrabbando che La Germania, l'Austria e la Turchia cercano di far passare dal suo territorio neutro. Si e' scoperto che da parecchio tempo una grande quantita' di barili, che avrebbero duvuto contenere della birra, spediti dalla Germania in Turchia, portavano invece delle munizioni. La sorveglianza attuale pero' e' tale che di simili trovate gli Imperi Centrali ne potranno in futuro, fare a meno.

Cio' che si Dice a Vienna

Il bollettino Austriaco porta che gli attachi Italiani sono stati tutti respinti; che gli Italiani si sono ritirati dalle posizioni conquistate vicino il ponte di Gorizia; che nel Tirolo un battaglione fu respinto, e nella regione di Tofana una compagnia Italiana fu annientata.

I TURCHI AGLI ESTREMI

A Roma si e' appreso che i Turchi hanno munizioni e viveri per appena un mese. Da cio' si arguisce che, se la Bulgaria e la Rumania continueranno ad opporsi al transito dei materiali da guerra, i Dardanelli saranno in mano degli Alleati in poco tempo.

TURKS ALARMED FOR DARDANELLES

GENEVA, via Paris, July 30.—Telegraphing from Salonoki, the correspondent of the Tribune says:

"An important conference was held at Constantinople July 27, Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, Field Marshal von der Goltz, the German commander of the Turkish forces, the Turkish Grand Vizier and the Ottoman cabinet being represented. Field Marshal von der Goltz and the Grand Vizier were present in person.

"The question of the Dardanelles was discussed and also Italy's presence there, which the Turks now consider inevitable.

"A Greece and Turkish conflict was considered as a possible eventuality. The conference was somewhat stormy

TALK ON TRAGEDY COSTS DANA PLACE

Edmund Trowbridge Dana, whose wife, Jesse Halliday Dana, ended her life at Nantucket, has been discharged by the University of Minnesota, because of the unconventional burial and the maner in which he discussed the tragedy in the newspapers.

The letter, notifying him that he had been ousted, addressed to him at Manchester-by-the-Sea, gave the reasons for the action of the faculty:

"You have not shown the regard for the common usages and common opinion expected of a member of a university. * * * You have not shown the discretion necessary for a teacher. * * * The great majority of our community regard the days following such a bereavement as a time for silence, for reserve, for dignity.

Russia Urged to Send Men to French Front

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, July 30.—A sensation was caused in Paris today by an article published in the Echo de Paris, which is in effect a call upon Russia to send men to fight with the allies on the western theatre. It was written by General Cherfils, one of the ablest military critics of France.

"We can manufacture more guns than we have men to use them," says General Cherfils. "Then why should not Russia send us, while the White Sea is open, two or three corps of its army without horses, without arms and without cannon?

"They would be armed and equipped in France and fight beside our troops. The announcement of such reinforcements would have a great moral force. The point where this reinforcement would be used is the only secret that the censor need guard."

50 Shirkers Face Munitions Court

By International News Service.

LONDON, July 30.—The first prosecution under the new munitions tribunal will take place at Glasgow on Monday, when fifty coppersmiths, charged with shirking their duty, will be arraigned.

RUSH WORK ON BIG WAR ORDERS

Shells, shoes and leather for the allies to the value of $6,800,000 are being turned out in rush orders by two Greater Boston concerns. The A. C. Lawrence Leather Company of Peabody has shipped since January 1 or has in process $5,000,000 worth of grain and split leather. The shipments go to Brockton to be made into shoes for the allies, or direct to England. The plant is working 2222 men in day and night shifts.

A Boston concern, understood to be the S. A. Woods Machine Company of South Boston, has a contract for $1,800,000 worth of three-inch shells. The company is working day and night.

EASTLAND HULL SEIZED BY THE U. S.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Federal Judge Landis, exercising the power of his office, today issued an order seizing in the name of the United States government the overturned steamer Eastland, on which more than 1,000 lives were lost last Saturday.

The action of Judge Landis was the most drastic taken by any official since the disaster. The order placed the Eastland wholly in the hands of the Federal government and lifted the matter of investigation and rescue of bodies from the sunken hull of the vessels out of the hands of the police and the State authorities except in so far as Judge Landis may direct their activities.

More bodies were discovered today in the hull of the Eastland. Far down in the engine room divers came upon the forms of men, women and children wedged so tightly together it was impossible to count them. The bodies had been pushed down between the machinery of the vessel and the boilers. The body of a young woman was the first to be lifted out.

The first witnesses called before the Federal Grand Jury were Jack Clark, lookout, and Joe Conrad, an oiler of the Eastland's crew.

Congressman A. J. Sabath announced that unless the Cabinet member's probe went as deep as possible he would demand a congressional investigation.

The official figures were unchanged today. There were 834 bodies identified, one unidentified and 518 missing.

Body number 396, "the little feller" as the tiny form was spoken of by policemen who stood guard over it at the morgue, was identified today as that of Willie E. Novotny, aged eight, whose father and mother also went down with the Eastland. Willie's body will be buried with military honors and every troop of Boy Scouts in the city will be represented.

Glazier Out for Senate.

Dr. Frederick Glazier of Hudson, Progressive, will be a candidate for Senator in the Fifth Middlesex District.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that your nostrils are clogged—if you hawk and spit in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just go to Riker-Jaynes, or any other drug store, and purchase one ounce of Fluid Enserol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put two drops in the affected ear every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle throat and snuff up nose night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.

LONGLEY BRIDE WINS HEART OF "TINY'S" MOTHER

"Tiny" Longley's secret bride is making a tremendous hit with her wealthy mother-in-law, Mrs. Charles E. Longley, Sr., of Swampscott—also of New York and Pawtucket, R. I.

"Tiny" is the pet name given to Charles E. Longley, Jr., by his Broadway cronies because he is only six feet and four inches tall. Last January he married Grace E. Mortimer of New York, a pink-cheeked, blue-eyed maid, whose blonde beauty is acclaimed by her friends, and more especially by "Tiny," as perfect.

The marriage did not become public until the middle of this week, when the couple came to the Longley home at Pawtucket and thence to Boston and Swampscott. They were met at the Back Bay station by "Tiny's" mother, who greeted her new daughter-in-law affectionately.

They all went out to the Longley Summer estate at Swampscott, and it is from there that the news now comes of the delightful impression that the bride has made on Mrs. Longley, Sr.

The elder and the younger Mrs. Longley are most congenial. The bride's stunning appearance and the personal charm which made her such a favorite in her own set in Manhattan won instant favor with "Tiny's" mother.

As for "Tiny," his happiness is too obvious for comment. He sums up his experience thus: "I fell in love with her at first sight."

Edson Promoted to Be Smoke Inspector

Warren A. Edson of Boston was today appointed chief smoke inspector for the State Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners to succeed William H. Gerrish of Malden, who died from burns received in a garage fire at his home. Mr. Edson was formerly deputy inspector for the Board.

STRIKERS CLAIM FOSS REFUSED TO SEE THEM

A committee representing the strikers of the Becker Milling Machine Company, Hyde Park, which claimed to have an appointment with former Governor Foss, president of the company, reported that Mr. Foss declined to see them.

The committee claimed that the following message from Mr. Foss was given them:

"My attitude is just the same, and I don't care to see the committee. I will take the men back individually."

Later Mr. Foss issued a statement, saying:

"I have no proposition to make and nothing further to say. I will take the men back individually. The shop is running and 100 machinists are at work. At the most the men out do not number more than 400. We will continue to run days, but not nights. I do not know what my firm was paying the sub-contractors. I do not know what the men i my plant were being paid.

The strikers claimed today that four men were discharged from the B. F. Sturtevant Company, another Foss concern, on account of union sympathies. James McGinnis, who was discharged last week from a job at the Becker plant paying 22½ cents an hour, said today: Foreman Corey of the Sturtevant Company has just offered me a job at 35 cents an hour."

TALK NEW ENGLAND MOVE

O. L. Preble, organizer of the pattern-makers, said:

"Our organization is going to demand forty-five cents an hour. The pattern-makers at the Becker plant have been getting thirty-five cents an hour. Two days ago the company voluntarily raised wages to thirty-eight cents an hour. Before the business let-up they were getting forty-three cents an hour.

"On August 9 there will be a conference at Springfield to decide what moves to make throughout New England. Within a week more than thirty firms have granted the pattern-makers' demands."

Peter Conlon, international vice-president of the Machinists' Union, has announced that unless the strike at the Becker Company is settled by Monday or Tuesday, a strike will be called at the Sturtevant Works.

Twenty-two hundred men are employed at the Blower Works. Former Governor Foss is president of the Milling Company, and treasurer of the Blower Works.

When the whistle blew at the Becker plant today practically every machine was vacant.

ESTIMATE OF 850.

The company's watchman said 100 men went to work, but union pickets said that not more than fifty entered the gates and that this fifty included apprentices, porters and laborers and but few machinists.

It is estimated that 650 of the day workers and 200 of the night workers, making a total of 850 men, are on strike.

PRESIDENT AND LANSING TALK ON MEXICO

By International News Service.

CORNISH, N. H., July 30.—President Wilson conferred with Secretary of State Lansing by telephone on the Mexican situation and other State affairs today.

It can be stated that the American government will insist upon the opening of direct communication between Vera Cruz and Mexico City, in order to help the starving inhabitants of the Mexican capital. Secretary Lansing's efforts to this end have the full indorsement of the President. A full statement on the Mexican situation may be issued from Washington within a few days.

The United States has no intention of making the famine situation in Mexico Ciy a pretext for a decisive move to end the anarchy existing in the southern republic, it is asserted.

The President spent the forenoon in his study, deserting the links, because of the absence of his physician, Dr. Cary T. Grayson.

East Wind and Fog in Weather Offering Today

East wind and fog were served at the Boston weather table today instead of the "hot dog" weather which has kept people sticky and peevish so much of late.

The east wind kept temperature down to around the 65-degree notch through the first of the day. The fog hovered over the harbor up to the rush hour.

One more good smashing rainfall would give this July the monthly record for wetness. In September, 1882, we had 10.93 inches of precipitation for the month.

Up to 12 midnight this July had seen 8.72 inches of rainfall. If it can squeeze out over 2.21 inches before tomorrow midnight it will get the precipitation medal.

Moose Second on Primary Ballot

As further evidence of their intention to place a complete State ticket in the field this Fall, a delegation of Progressives today attended the drawing for party places on the primary ballot in the office of Secretary of State A. P. Langtry. The Progressives secured second place on the primary ballot. First place was drawn by the Republicans and third by the Democrats.

MARINES STOP RESISTANCE IN HAYTI

WASHINGTON, July 30.—American marines on landing at Port au Prince, Hayti, encountered resistance which was overcome without casualties among the sailors, is the report received from Admiral Caperton.

The Admiral's message to the Navy Department says:

"Landing forces established in city. Slight resistance as advance was being made. This resistance easily overcome. No casualties to our force. Am proceeding to disarm Haytian soldiers and civilians."

Admiral Caperton's force has been increased by the arrival of 100 marines from Guantanamo on the collier Jason. In all he now has available between 400 and 500 marines and bluejackets for shore duty.

Officials say no representations have been made by the French government regarding the violation of the French legation at Port au Prince.

No advices have reached here regarding the status of the government in Hayti since the assassination of President Guillaume. It is assumed the rebels are in control.

The revolutionists' lust for revenge, following the execution of 180 prisoners by order of Governor Oscar and President Guillaume, does not seem to have spent itself in the killing of Governor Oscar and the President.

TIGERS IN TOWN FOR FOUR SHOWS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

We have with us today, ladies and gentlemen, and tomorrow and Sunday and Monday and Tuesday (only we do not play ball here on Sundays) the justly celebrated Detroit Tigers. Some call them Tigers.

They are all here —Vitt, Young, Cobb, Crawford, Veach, Burns, Bush and several pitchers and catchers.

And so is Hughey Jennings, the freckled-faced manager, who eats grass and yells "E-yah."

They expect to make things lively for the Red Sox in then ext few days. We shall see; we shall see.

They are right on the heels of the Red Sox in the race for the pennant. When the Tigers are right on your heels the most natural thing in the world is to get scared. But the Red Sox are not scared. They would like to win all four games from the visitors, but as a matter of fact it is a good guess that they would be satisfied in making an even split of the series.

The game this afternoon begins at 3:15 o'clock and the chances are that Uncle Bill, who manages the Boston team, will shove in a left-handed pitcher in the hope of subduing the Tigers. He has "Babe" Ruth, "Dutch" Leonard, Vean Gregg and Ray Collins to choose from. In dications point to Leonard as the selection. "Dutch" had lots of stuff the last time he pitched, but his control was not of the best.

As for the Tigers, they may present Coveleskie, also a left-hander, who has made trouble for the Red Sox in previous encounters.

Fans, at any rate, may expect some red-hot battles up at Fenway in the next few days. The Boston baseball public is all "het up" over the Red Sox at present. If the weather is clear there will be a large crowd out this afternoon, and, if it continued clear Saturday, the ticket-sellers will do a land office business.

Big Auto Race Postponed.

"THE RABBIT'S" COLUMN BY Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

CINCINNATI, July 30.—Brooklyn's recent winning streak and the well-known method of the Brooklyn club's president of declaring a holiday at the slightest provocation has caused L. C. Davis, the St. Louis poet, to mention in verse the awful things that will happen "When Brooklyn Wins the Flag":

Oh, there'll be holidays galore,
When Brooklyn wins the flag;
And dedications by the score
When Brooklyn wins the flag.
A double-header they will play,
On Christmas and St. Patrick's Day,
And Ebbets will be Queen of May—
When Brooklyn wins the flag.

They'll celebrate the fall of Rome,
When Brooklyn wins the flag;
They'll dedicate St. Peter's dome,
When Brooklyn wins the flag.
The birthday of old Buffalo Bill,
The day T. R. took San Juan Hill,
They'll honor with a double bill,
When Brooklyn wins the flag.

They'll have a Billy Sunday Day,
When Brooklyn wins be flag;
They'll honor both the Blue and Gray,
When Brooklyn wins the flag.
Abe Lincoln and the "Georgia Peach"
Will not be honored in the breach;
They'll set aside a day for each,
When Brooklyn wins the flag.

A Noah day will be observed,
When Brooklyn wins the flag;
And double rain-checks will be served,
When Brooklyn wins the flag.
The man who soaked Billy Patterson
Will have his day; and everyone
Will honor our G. Washington,
When Brooklyn wins the flag.

This is a very fine poem, and has only one flaw. Brooklyn won't win the flag.

The tip is out that a meeting of organized baseball forces would soon be called, either in Cincinnati or in New York, with delegates from the A. A. leagues sitting in. Business on hand, a discussion of the latest Federal League outbreak, which has resulted in winning over several players from the American Association.

Ever since the Landis hearing, organized ball, in compliance with tacit understanding accepted at that time, has left the Federals severely alone. No attempt has been made even to recall jumpers who wanted to come back. Instead of living up to this understanding, the Federals, it is said, are now at their old game again.

The Federals made their plea in Judge Landis' court on the ground that organized baseball was taking their duly contracted players, and that they needed court protection.

* * *

When the announcer gets on the job at the opening game next season the fans may expect to hear: "The umpires for today are Messrs. Klem and Dahlen." Yes, Bad Bill—in his day always a terror to umpires—has decided to take to umpiring. When he was relieved of the job as manager of the Brooklyn team, President Ebbets engaged him to do scouting duty for the Brooklyn Club.

But scouts this year are expensive luxuries and Bill was not reengaged this season. However, recently President Ebbets informed him that he was once more in the employ of the Brooklyn Club. Dahlen, while he has accepted the position with the Brooklyn Club, has decided that umpiring is a better position than that of scout.

Bill Klem recently told Bad Bill he should go out and try for a position on the National League staff of umpires. Right after that Dahlen tried his hand at umpiring some semi-pro games and got away with the job so well that he has finally made up his mind so put in his application with President Tener. In the meantime Dahlen intends to get some more practice umpiring for any of the semi-pro clubs.

"I am satisfied with the team. It is in the first division. We made a better showing than any Western club in the East, the pitchers are going all right, the batters are getting their eye on the ball and the boys are running bases in good style. What more could I ask? Perhaps I will shake things up a bit, but have not definitely decided on this as yet." This was Clarke's answer to a series of queries fired at him on his arrival home at Pittsburgh the other day.

'LEFTY' TYLER TO FACE REDS TODAY

CINCINNATI, July 30.—The hustling Braves tarry in Cincinnati; in fact, their current stand does not come to a close until after tomorrow's battle.

For today's performance in Redland Southpaw Tyler will do the honors for Boston, providing Chief Stallings, who is keeping his plans to himself, sticks to his arrangement of working the Derry boy, "Dick" Rudolph and Don Carlos Pat Ragan in one-two-three order, just as he dashed through his field a year ago with Rudolph, James and Tyler, and landed the world's championship in Boston.

"No-hit" Davis, who got off to a bad start in the closing combat yesterday, will probably show for the Braves should Stallings decide to keep Tyler on the sidelines.

Manager Herzog of the Reds reinstated Pitchers Lear and Benton just in time to help along the Braves' cause. They were informed yesterday morning that they were again in good standing. The King and the Rube were included in the boxmen Herzog hurled against the Braves in yesterday's double bill and both came to grief.

For today Herzog's choice lies between "Pete" Schneider and Jean Dale. Both worked for a little while yesterday, but the Braves did not permit either to go very far and Herzog, badly pressed for twirlers, will probably be forced to come back with one of these gents.

The Reds get through here tomorrow. With no championship game scheduled for Sunday they will fill in the off-day at Bellaire, O. Monday they open in Pittsburgh.

The Braves have won their last eight games—also fifteen out of their last sixteen—and Cincinnati bugdom is confident Stallings is going to come through with another pennant-winner.

Baseball Over the Wire.

PITTSBURGH, July 30.—Bill Hinchman, the Pirates' right fielder, distinguished himself by turning a double play unassisted against the Dodgers in the seventh inning. Catching Myers' liner, he ran to first and touched the bag before Pfeffer could get back.

WORCESTER, July 30.—Potteiger of Worcester and Lynch of Lynn exchanged blows during an argument. Both were put off the grounds.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Outfielder George Kelly of the Victoria (Northwestern League) club has reported to Manager McGraw of the Giants. He is a nephew of "Bill" Lange, the old-time Chicago outfielder.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 30.—Outfielder Kopp of the St. Thomas (Canadian League) club has been sold to the Washington Americans.

CHICAGO, July 30.—The receipts at yesterday's Chicago-Buffalo (Federal League) game, $955, were donated to the fund for Eastland sufferers.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 30.—Pitcher James Park of the Lexington (Ohio State League) club has been sold to the St. Louis Browns. He is a graduate of the University of Kentucky.

MAGEE MAY QUIT FEDERAL LEAGUE

KANSAS CITY, July 30.—Manager Lee Magee of the Brookfeds is the maddest man in baseball today as a result of the $150 fine imposed on him by President Gilmore for his fight with Umpire Corcoran on Wednesday.

"I'm going to communicate with the Brooklyn owner and tell him unless we get better umpiring and better breaks on the decisions I'm going to resign," said Magee.

"Umpire Corcoran hit me first in our mixup and I couldn't let him make a fool out of me. I have schooled my players into being aggressive and I am not going to play ladylike baseball just to please some umpires."

Pat Ragan Hangs Up Queer Record

Don Carlos Pat Ragan, pitcher extraordinary, winner of three games for the Braves in four days.

That's the record of the Braves' pitcher, and yet this feat is not remarkable for Pat was relieved when the "going" became warm in two contests and finished out the other game for Davis.

Monday, Ragan was relieved in the eight inning when he had loaded the bases with Cubs. Hughes went in and saved the game.

Yesterday Ragan was taken out in the fourth inning when the Braves were leading the Reds, 3 to 2, in the first game. In the second game he relieved Davis in the third inning with his team four runs to the bad and he won his game, 7 to 6, making two victories in one day.

GAFFNEY HOST TO 12,000 BOYS

When the Braves' new park—and it is to be christened Braves Field—is dedicated Wednesday, August 18, 12,000 pupils from the grammar and high schools will be the guests of President James E. Gaffney.

It was Mayor Curley who made this suggestion to Mr. Gaffney and the boss of the Braves was quick to place his O. K. on the arrangement. Incidentally, the Boston newsboys will also be Mr. Gaffney's guests. Likewise will invitations be extended to the Mayors of all cities in the State.

Mr. Gaffney announces that he has decided to name the park Braves Field. The seating capacity, he states, will be 45,000. The Cardinals draw the plum, dedication day.

GLOVER IS OUT TO WIN FROM BARTFIELD

By JACK CONWAY.

MIKE GLOVER isn't very particular who is selected to meet him these days. The South Boston puncher has been showing so well of late that he has an idea that he possesses enough class to defeat all the welterweight and most of the middleweight boxers.

The South Boston welterweight is booked to clash with "Soldier" Bartfield in a twelve-round skirmish at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. He'll have to be at his best to win from Bartfield, as the New Yorker is one of those regular fighters whom we read about occasionally. He proved that he possesses plenty of class when he recently outpointed Mike Gibbons in a ten-round tussle in New York.

"If Glover wins from Bartfield, I will try and sign him for a match with Mike Gibbons," stated George Freeman, manager of the Peninsular boxer, today. "Mike is anxious to secure a contest with the St. Paul phantom. He realizes that Gibbons outweighs him, but he is confident he would be able to beat him in a twelve-round skirmish."

Just now Gibbons is laid up for repairs, having had two ribs shattered in a recent bout with Leo Houck. Mike, however, says he will soon be ready for action, which means that we may have a Glover-Gibbons or a Gibbons-Bartfield mix-up in these parts before the Atlas A. A. season closes.

BAT NELSON is with us once again. He comes forth with a lengthy statement in which he states that he is fit and ready to meet any lightweight in the world. The old Battler is particularly anxious to get a crack at Freddy Welsh. He says he would be able to punch Welsh full of holes in a twenty, twenty-five or forty-five round scrap. All of which makes very good reading, but we are forced to state that Nelson's days as a top-notch fighter are over. He's been a dead issue in the boxing game since he was beaten by Ad Wolgast and Owen Moran. His big heart is all that he has left to carry him through his ring battles. No boxing promoter in his sane mind would think of using Nelson in a bout against a star performer. He's slowed up and it is not any pleasure to watch him in action as he is not able to land a solid blow on account of his broken hands, while he is unable to get out of the way of most of his opponent's punches.

CHARLEY WHITE and "Young" Saylor may show in another bout at the Atlas A. A. on August 17. The rival lightweights have agreed to almost all the terms for such a match. Billy Roche officiated at the last White-Saylor bout and his verdict, which was a draw, was a very poor one. Saylor naturally would not battle White again if Roche was selected to referee the contest. White, on the other hand, persisted in holding out for Roche. It now looks as though White will agree to allow some referee other than Roche to officiate. Charley White of New York will probably be the selection. He's no relation to the White with the big punch, but he has proved himself to be a capable ring official.

GILBERT GALLANT, the rugged Chelsea boxer, is ready to meet all comers. Gallant is prepared to battle Charley White, "Young" Saylor, Freddy Welsh or any other top-notch lightweight.

MATTY BALDWIN is also ready for action again. The veteran is not picking opponents. "Give me a tough fellow to box about once every three weeks," is the way Matty puts it.

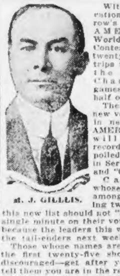
Gillis Confident of Place in World's Series Contest



M. J. GILLIS.

With the publication of tomorrow's coupon, the AMERICAN'S World's Series Contest, for the twenty-five FREE trips to see all of the World's Championship games, will be half over.

There will be a new vote standing in next Sunday's AMERICAN which will contain a record of all votes polled (over 2,000) in Series "A," "B" and "C."

Candidates whose names are among the leading twenty-five in this new list should not "let up" for a single minute on their vote-gathering because the leaders this week may be the tail-enders next week.

Those whose names are not among the first twenty-five should not be discouraged—get after your friends, tell them you are in the race TO WIN, ask them for their support and pile up a vote total big enough to put you in the lead and then, STAY THERE.

When the AMERICAN'S Special Pullman train is leaving the station sometime next October, when the World's Series games are being enjoyed by the lucky fans from specially reserved seat sections and when these same lucky fans are having the time of their lives traveling from city to city to the different games, if YOU are one of the twenty-five "most popular fans in New Englands" you will not regret any of the time and effort spent NOW in "getting there."

M. J. Gillis of Boston, whose many friends are urging him on to success, says, "I expect to be on that Special Pullman train when it leaves Boston for the World's Series. Watch me climb that vote list!"

WASHBURN LOOMS UP AS SURPRISE

Both singles and doubles championships for the Longwood Bowl and the Eastern Doubles titles will probably reach the semi-final stage today, providing the weather man does not interrupt.

Yesterday's afternoon match between N. W. Niles and G. P. Gardner, Jr., a Boston team, against National singles champion, R. N. Williams, 2d, of Boston, and W. M. Washburn of New York, had reached the third game of the second set when the rain caused a halt to be called.

Craig Biddle and H. C. Johnson, a Philadelphia-Boston team, are leading H. H. Hackett, a former member of the Davis Cup team, and T. R. Pell, another noted New York player, by three games to two in their match, and, while the more noted talent in the former combination are favored to win, the start is an auspicious one, with the possibilities of a very hard-fought match and a change of address as well.

In addition to the singles and doubles matches scheduled considerable interest will centre in the entries for the special mixed doubles tournament. This event will start tomorrow and continue Monday and Tuesday. Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the noted Norwegian champion, may be among the entrants. All of the local women players of note will be on hand, with Mrs. Barger Wallach of Newport, a former woman's single champion, Miss Eleanora Sears, Miss Marion Fenno, Miss Anne Sheafe, Miss Alice Cunningham and Miss Edith Rotch prominently included in the field.

Use Sail for Movie Screen on Cruise

NEW LONDON, Ct., July 30.—Commodore George F. Baker's flagship steam yacht Viking, New York Yacht Club, which is here, hauled out for painting and polishing, will have a motion picture machine aboard next Monday night when the fleet is at anchor ready for the start for Newport Tuesday morning on the annual cruise.

Commodore Baker's sloop Ventura, anchored close by, will have her main sail set and used as a screen for the unique marine "movie."

Grand Circuit Results.

DETROIT, July 30.—The M. & M. $10,000 stake will be run off today, weather permitting. Yesterday's results: 2:22 pace, $1,000, Jean, Murphy, straight heats; 2:11 pace, $1,000, Clara Walker, Cox, three firsts and two seconds; 2:15 pace, $1,000, Peter Farren, Murphy, straight heats; 2:10 trot, $1,000, Guy Nella, Murphy, second and two firsts.

Cubans Had to Jump When Willard Said So

Next to being champion of the world Jess Willard takes most pride in being the man who made Cubans hurry.

When he went to Havana to prepare for his fight with Johnson the hotel proprietor let him put up a ring in the garden. The Cubans thought it could be done in a week. Willard bossed the job himself and had it done in one day.

Tomorrow's chapter of the Willard autobiography in the AMERICAN contains many interesting bits beside the ring-building feature.

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the twenty-sixth of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the Boston AMERICAN by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the AMERICAN on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

An Exercise That Develops Almost Every Muscle of Body and Limbs.

The only imagination you need employ in this exercise, is to imagine, when you see it done by a practised gymnast (and before you have tried it yourself) that it is an easier thing than you will find it to be when you do try it.

There is nothing complicated about it; it is easy to describe—which some of the easiest to do are not—but it will give you a realization of the weight of your body, which may surprise you. Or, what is the same thing, of the strength of the effort which gravitation is constantly putting forth to drag you down.

But, for that very reason, it is one of the most strengthening exercises in the whole list. It affects, and therefore develops, almost every muscle of body and limbs; and unless you have faithfully practised the exercises heretofore described, you will find it difficult to do it at all. Many people who have never suspected themselves of helplessness, will discover, from this exercise, what that condition is.

From your erect position, squat down like a frog; then get forward on your hands and walk on them until you find yourself with your body extended along the floor, nearly flat, supported only by your arms. Let the elbows bend, until your chest is almost in contact with the floor. Meanwhile, straighten out your legs, until they are rigid as bars and support yourself on your toes; if you are barefooted you will bend your toes, but if you have stout boots on, you can rest on the tips of the boot-toes themselves.

Don't let your body sag in the middle, straighten that out too, until there is one straight line from the nape of your neck (inclusive) to your heels. Throughout the exercise you must not allow that straight line to become bent at any point. This is essential; without it, the exercise cannot be properly performed. Be strictly rigid from one end to the other and don't give in anywhere.

Now straighten your elbows, keeping them almost in contact with the ribs. This will, of course, lift your body (always rigid) away from the floor, so that it assumes a slanting position. As soon as the elbows are quite straight, bend them again, until your chest is once more nearly touching the floor. Then go up again, and keep going up and down until you can't go up again. You cannot do it twenty times; at first, perhaps, you can do it but twice or thrice, or perhaps even not at all, but you will do better at the end of a week and in a month you should be able to complete the twentieth uplift without too much effort. You need not go beyond that, because, after all, this is only one exercise out of quite a number, and you do not have to depend wholly on it for your bodily improvement.

But it will try you out very thoroughly; you can feel the tensing of the muscles of shoulders, back, buttocks, thighs, adominals, pectorals and arms, and you will find yourself breathing pretty hard, too, when you get back to your erect position. You have given gravitation a hard tussle.

Shawmut Boat Club Enters Lynn Regatta

The Shawmut Boat Club has entered crews in several events in the People's regatta at Lynn tomorrow.

The Shawmuts are considerably handicapped in their work by the unfavorable rowing conditions prevailing in South bay, but under the circumstances feel that their oarsmen are well developed. The Shawmuts' entries are as follows:

Novice singles—William Weislinger.
Junior singles—William Skayhan.
Intermediate singles—John Donovan.
Junior double sculls—W. Halpin, Tom Donovan.
Eight-oared race—Shawmuts vs. Farraguts. Shawmut crew: P. Shields, stroke; W. Skayhan, No. 7; William Griffin, 6; W. Halpin, 5; J. Halpin, 4; J. Skayhan, 3; J. Riley, 2; T. Donovan, bow; James Donovan, coxswain.

Braves Sell Pitcher Cram.

President Gaffney of the Braves announces the sale of Pitcher Cram, the Melrose boy, who starred on the hillock for Brown University all Spring, to the Richmond (International League) club. With Pitcher Jess Barnes of Davenport, Ia., added, Stallings had to let Cram go in order to remain within the player limit.

Cup Yachts Abandon Races Off Newport

NEWPORT, July 30.—The series of races between the Resolute and the Vanite scheduled to be sailed off Newport and which started Monday have been abandoned. The fog prevented all but one race which was a victory for the Resolute. Both yachts will remain here until tomorrow or Monday, then sail for New London to join the New York Yacht Club cruise. After the cruise it is likely the boats will meet in a special race off Marblehead, August 12, after which there is nothing positive about the yachts' future. It is likely, however, they will go out of commission.

KING KRAMER IN MATCH AT REVERE

Frank Kramer, the greatest of all bikers, has been signed up to appear at the Revere Cycle Track tomorrow night in a special international sprint match with Caesar Moretti, champion of Italy.

Another feature on the week-end card is the four-cornered 25-mile motor-paced race between Jimmy Moran of Chelsea, Bobby Walthour of Atlanta, Harold Rollins of Everett and "Pinkie" Turville of Revere. The regular card of amateur and professional events will be run off in addition to the two big contests.

It is needless to go into details about the great feats of Kramer. Every bike "fan" knows what he has done and what he is capable of doing. Here is a man who has held the national sprint championship for fourteen years and is as good today as he ever was.

Of all the foreign riders to tackle the perpetual champion during his long career, Moretti is one of the select few who have been able to give the Yankee flyer a real battle. It was for this reason that Manager Butler picked the Italian to oppose Kramer at the beach oval tomorrow night.

Kramer owes his success to clean living. He is without doubt one of the greatest examples of physical fitness extant. He has been riding nearly twenty years now and expects to be able to pedal a wheel successfully until he is fifty years of age.

Kramer doesn't have to work hard, still he is able to gather in a luxurious sum each year. Last year he won $16,000 in prize money.

Shafer's Cousin Turns Down Giants

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 30.—Tom Workman, first baseman of the Stanford University team, who signed with the New York Nationals this Spring, wired to Manager McGraw today that he would not report.

Workman, who is a cousin of Art Shafer, holdout infielder of the Giants, announced he had given up the idea of playing professional ball and probably would engage in business.

SIDELIGHTS on SPORTS By A·H·C·Mitchell

UMPIRE-IN-CHIEF BILLY EVANS was put in a rather trying position when he had to decide whether or not to call off the game at Fenway Park yesterday. There was a large crowd on hand. The game had gone three full innings and neither the White Sox nor the Red Sox had scored. Then rain came down, falling quite briskly for ten minutes. Then it let up, but continued again a few minutes later.

AT the end of half an hour Evans and the two club managers—Carrigan and Rowland—went out on the diamond to take a close look at conditions. Meanwhile the spectators were under cover, waiting patiently for the verdict. The grounds were in bad shape—water soaked and very slippery. It would have been a hazardous thing to order $300,000 worth of ball players to cavort on that kind of field.

BUT when the sun came out for a moment, the crowd yelled, "play ball" and cheered when a gang of men appeared and began to sweep the water from the base paths. Fifty minutes after, the game was stopped on account of rain. Umpire Evans ordered the announcement that the game was off and that a double-header between the two teams would be played on the next visit here of the White Sox.

Mr. Evans did the right thing. It would have been foolish, as well as dangerous, to have resumed play under the conditions.

IT promised to be another close and exciting game and the crowd was keenly disappointed when rain interfered. Foster and Faber, the opposing pitchers, were working their heads off to win. The Red Sox had not secured a hit off Faber, but they were making him pitch. Two of them had worked him for a pass. On the other hand, the White Sox had registered a couple of singles—one by Murphy in the first inning and the other by Felsch in the second.

Remarkable fielding by the Red Sox snuffed out the visitors in the opening round. After Murphy singled to right, Weaver poked a grounder in Hoblitzell's direction. The first-sacker scooped up the ball and ran for the bag. When Weaver came along, Hobby tagged him out with a punch that was violent to say the least. It was revenge for some of Weaver's vicious plays in past games.

Eddie Collins then rapped a hot one to Gardner's corner. Larry made a swell pickup and shot the ball to first in time to nip the clever second-baseman. Fournier came along with a sharp grounder past the box, but Foster speared it with his meat hand and tossed the runner out. They were three very swell plays and put the crowd on edge for some further great doings.

THERE were close to 7,000 spectators at Fenway Park and they all have rainchecks which will be good for any game this year, as only three innings were played. If the game had gone an inning and a half more, if the rain had held off for, say fifteen minutes, these rainchecks would have been useless.

THE Chicago club gets no share of yesterday's receipts. Most of the money they would have received if the game had lasted a few minutes longer, will go to the Tigers, who open here today. It is possible, of course, that some of the fans will save their rainchecks for the double-header between the two Sox teams when the Chicagos come here next, but those who hold rainchecks usually go up to the grounds at the first convenient opportunity.

THE Tigers, with Crawford, Cobb, Veach, Jennings and the rest of them, are the best in baseball, especially when they are up fighting the Red Sox for the lead. They are, as a matter of fact, close on the heels of Our Boys. It will be a funny kind of fan who will allow his raincheck to remain in his pockets while the Tigers are in town.

WALTER HAPGOOD of the Herald, has been appointed business manager of the Braves. Herman Nickerson will continue as secretary of the club. "Nick" will doubtless be very much pleased to have "Happy" as his companion.

"THE GODDESS" By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

By Gouverneur Morris
and
Charles W. Goddard.

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

Freddie the Ferrett follows Celestia, who feels secure in the protecting presence of Tommy.

TOMMY pressed a button, the car gave one of those sudden signals of warning that sound like a giant being sick at his stomach.

Professor Stilliter leaped aside, but not in time to escape being grazed by the mud guard, which sent him rolling.

Freddie the Ferret leaped to his feet for sheer joy of being alive to see his enemy bite the dust. When Professor Stilliter got his feet the car was passing out of the village. To get his own car under way was not the work of a moment, the driver having gone into the back yard of the parsonage for a pail of water, and remained to gossip with the maid-of-all work.

But Tommy knew that there would be a pursuit, and thenceforth drove his own car, or rather the one with which he had eloped, as fast as he dared. He had no personal fear of Stilliter. But he wished, if possible, to show Celestia the cave, and the proofs that she had once inhabited it.

The state of hypnosis that she was in troubled and distressed him. But sooner or later it must pass, he thought. Certainly nature must come to the rescue. Meanwhile, he took a pathetic pleasure in working on her mental condition with a view to promoting her comfort.

"You look tired, dear," he said.

"I am not a bit tired," she answered, "and besides the driver says I must not be tired."

"And you have to obey the driver."

This had a marvellous effect. Her head no longer drooped, color came into her cheeks, and into her eyes a look of vivacity. In one way Tommy was rejoiced; at the same time, he felt as if he would rather like to cry. There was something so pathetic about her absolute docility.

"Soon," said Tommy, "you are going to leave the car and go for a long walk through the woods with me. You will walk fast and not get tired. We're going to the wonderful cave where you lived and played when you were a little girl, and which they taught you to believe was Heaven"——

He broke off suddenly. Then asked her a question.

"Do you have to do as the driver tells you?"

"Yes."

"Do you have to believe a thing if he tells you to believe it?"

"Yes."

It would be absurd to say that Tommy was not tempted then and there to do an unmanly thing. In a few moments, by the power of mental suggestion, he could undermine her belief in herself, in her origin and in her destiny. It would not even be necessary to take her to the cave.

They would simply drive on and on until they came to a civilized place and could be married. All this occurred to Tommy and tempted him. But like the good gentleman that he was, he resisted the temptation at once, and with finality. If he was to shake her beliefs, it would be by fair means, open and above board.

Half an hour passed. Tommy shut off power, and brought the car to a stand at the side of the narrow road.

"Come, Celestia," he said, "and follow me."

He turned his back upon the road and stepped off boldly into the woods. Celestia followed him, walking as she had been told to do with swift tirelessness. And the Ferret followed her.

There is no need to describe that walk or the country through which it led them. It was just a walk as Tommy had told her of, long and fast. But it didn't tire her. It was for the most part along narrow blazed trails, but sometimes Tommy took short cuts known to himself.

Slowly, sadly the young man came along the garden path to the arbor where 'neath blossoming roses the maiden waited.

"How did your father take it?" she asked him anxiously.

"Oh, he took it all right, said the young man, in a miserable voice.

"I'm so glad!" sighed the maid, in relief.

"Are you?" he replied, as he sank by her side on the seat. "Well, I can't say I am, dear. At first he wouldn't listen to me."

"But didn't you tell him you had $4,000 in the bank?" she exclaimed.

"I did, when all my other arguments had failed."

"And what did he do then?"

"Do" cried the young man, his voice fraught with despair. "He borrowed it."

The simplest and safest remedy for Eczema and other Skin Troubles is Cadum Ointment.

Many skin diseases like eczema are due to an external cause and are not the result of impure blood. The taking of internal medicines is a waste of time and money. Cadum Ointment stops the itching at once, and the healing begins immediately. People who have suffered for years and who have tried everything should take fresh courage, for this new compound is different from anything else. It is for Eczema, sores, psoriasis, ulcers, ringworm, rash, pimples, scaly skin, scabs, eruptions, blotches, itch, etc. 10c, and 25c. per box at druggists.

SUZANNE TALBOT has adapted the square veil of single mesh with circles embroidered by hand and uses it in a manner similar to the mourning veil, draping it over a Second Empire shape of old gold taffeta and holding it by a band of turquoise blue grosgrain ribbon drawn through a small mother-of-pearl buckle directly in front.

IS there a significant meaning in the dove of corded silver which Suzanne Talbot has permitted to alight on her hat of black satin? It is the only suggestion of decoration on this very wide sailor shape, though a tiny fold of the satin outlines the edge on the top of the brim.

ANOTHER toque shape Suzanne Talbot makes of dove plumes in a dark green tone. Though the shape is a flat, a certain height is attained by raising the plumes on the left side. A band of dark green satin, identical in color with the plumes, reveals itself just where the hat rests on the head.

By ANN LISLE.

THERE was once a girl who trusted every one and every one took advantage of her and deceived her. Her relatives smiled and remarked, "Oh, she likes to sit at home and do the work while her sisters go to balls and her brothers attend college. Society and education would bore her—she's naturally domestic."

Her parents declared, "She enjoys contriving her costumes out of hand-me-downs! She is just naturally self-effacing, and she gets more fun out of seeing the other children have things than she would out of getting them herself."

Her lovers said, "She understands the romance and lure a fellow feels in pursuing an affair with a girl, and she doesn't mind our deserting her after the newness has worn off our friendship."

And the girl met life smiling and took her disappointments cheerfully. "For," said she, "these will make me a strong, fine woman, able to appreciate true friendship and true love when I find them. For, of course, there are plenty of loyal, appreciative, understanding souls in the world, so I'll keep faith with life until I find one."

And then the Right Prince came her way and she was very happy, and she said to herself, "Here is my reward!"

And every day the Right Prince gave new proof of how he admired her strength and was glad and proud to be the lover of so splendid a woman.

Then at last on the eve of their wedding, the Right Prince came to the girl and said: "Dear Woman, you are strong and fine and my dear ideal. But your little sister Merry loves me and she is young and helpless like a child, so of course I can't let her heart break. You are so strong and fine that you can bear the loss of love. Merry couldn't. So of course I must marry her tomorrow. And I'm sure you'll be happy in her happiness."

Which teaches us that some of the strong deserve more fair treatment.

The Answer

"It's dangerous to be under this tree in a thunderstorm; one of us might get killed."

"Well, if you are killed you won't be able to talk any more, and if I'm killed I can't hear you, so I think we'd better stay," said the victim.

Lime Medication in Tuberculosis

In the N. Y. Medical Record of December 5, 1914, Dr. John Narth, of Toledo, says: "I have come to the conclusion that one of the most prominent causes (of tuberculosis) is 'lime starvation.' * In all cases of incipient tuberculosis there is a deficiency of calcium. Many do not eat food containing enough lime. * In such cases we must resort to lime medication."

Eckman's Alterative should be given a fair trial in such cases, because one of its chief ingredients is calcium (lime), in such combination with other remedial agents as to be easily assimilated by the average person.

Where its use is combined with proper diet, fresh air and hygienic living conditions, we believe it will prove beneficial in any case of tuberculosis.

It contains no opiates, narcotics, or habit-forming drugs, so is safe to try. Sold by all Riker-Jaynes Drug Stores and leading druggists.

Parents and the Child

By Virginia Terhune Van De Water

Copyright, 1915, Star Company.

THE natural courtesy of small children is conspicuous by its absence. Some mothers insist that to demand from a very small child good manners is unkind.

Last week I was sitting on a friend's veranda, chatting with two little girls. I had never met the parents of either. When I arose to go into the house to get a bit of sewing, one of the children rose to its feet and remained standing until I was gone. A few minutes later, as I returned to the veranda, I saw that she had resumed her seat, but as soon as I appeared she sprang up and stood until I was once more seated. Then she sat down. Her companion had remained at ease in a hammock, lolling back among the cushions.

Later, when the children had bade me goodbye and taken their departure, I asked my hostess about them. She smiled at my question.

"I know why you ask who they are," she said. "It is because one has such pretty manners, and the other has none at all. Isn't that it?"

"Yes," I acknowledged, "it is. I fancied that they must come of families in entirely different spheres."

"But they don't," my friend informed me. "The little girl whose courtesy is so marked is the daughter of a mother who has never permitted her to be discourteous. It is as natural for her to rise when an older person rises as it is for the other child to remain seated in a comfortable hammock.

The parents of the latter do not lieve in trammeling the young. They say they will let Mary alone until she is old enough to notice the manners of others and to copy them."

Why? I wondered. Is any courtesy as perfect as that which is as unconscious as breathing?

BOSTON MAN HAD SURELY SUFFERED

James Stevens of 86 Eustis Street Is Relating Story to His Friends.

When a patient says, "My food does not agree with me; it sours on my stomach; I have no appetite and I have to be very careful what I eat," it is dyspepsia. The least of the suffering is upon the stomach, for it is in active sympathy with the brain and nervous system and may produce nervous prostration, gloomy forebodings, nightmare, sleeplessness, as well as many other indications of a breaking down of the general health.

JAMES STEVENS

Plant Juice is giving wonderful results to thousands of sufferers of stomach, liver and kidney trouble. Many people call daily at the Plant Juice headquarters, at Liggett's drug store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, out of gratitude, to thank the representative for what this medicine has done for them. The following statement was recently made by Mr. James Stevens, who resides at No. 86 Eustis Street, Roxbury, and who is a well-known and popular salesman. He stated:

"I had suffered all my life with my stomach, indigestion and dyspepsia. I was told by specialists on the stomach that I had only about three months to live. My food would ferment in my stomach, causing gases to form, and I was always very much bloated. I had headaches, dizzy spells, and my tongue was always coated. I was also troubled more or less with rheumatic pains, and my limbs would swell to an enormous size. I had taken all kinds of remedies, and consulted many doctors, but nothing seemed to help me. I had been reading in the daily papers about the cures which were being effected by the remedy Plant Juice, and, although skeptical, I thought I would try a bottle. I have now taken three bottles and I can eat any kind of food and do not experience that distressed, bloated feeling that I did heretofore. My rheumatic pains have disappeared, and the swelling of my limbs has also gone. I am not nervous or restless, and sleep fine at night. Plant Juice has done a lot of good for me, and I am telling all my friends about it."

The Plant Juice man is at the Liggett drug store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he daily meets the local public and introduces and explains the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.—Advertisement.

WILLARD TELLS HOW HAVANA GOT FIGHT

By JESS WILLARD.

(Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt. All Rights Reserved.)

I drew a big breath of relief when Jack Curley decided on Juarez as the place for my fight with Johnson, and March 6 as the date. Things had been up in the air for so long that I was glad to see something settled.

Tom Jones and I set out at once for El Paso, stopping off in Chicago for a while to see about sparring partners and some other arrangements. I met Jimmy Clabby there, by the way, and, like the prince of a fellow that he is, Jimmy offered to go to El Paso with me.

It would have meant a big money loss to him, for he had a lot of good dates, and so I had to say that I wouldn't let him do me the big favor that he wanted. I had known him before, and I want to say that he was one of the few fighters who always went out of his way to help me.

One of the finest nights I ever had in my life was during that stay in Chicago. We had gone to the theatre, and walking back to the hotel, a bunch of newsboys gathered around. You see, everybody knows me by my height.

The kids all said they hoped I'd win, and I came back at them with an invitation to a quick lunch shop. We had a bully time, although it made me sorry every time I looked at some of the little fellows.

I don't believe that a kid under fourteen has any right to be out of school and at work. They don't get a chance to grow right, and the result is rickety men. And especially am I against kids in these street trades that keep them out at all hours of night.

After we left Chicago we stopped off in Excelsior Springs, Mo., to drink a barrel or so of that water there. Every doctor I've ever talked to tells me that they're the finest springs in the world, far better than any in Europe.

But every year you'll see thousands of Americans hiking over to those German springs just because they are in Germany. The one good thing about this awful war is that it may make some Americans see their own country.

Down in El Paso I located my training quarters at Knoblauch's ranch, out from the city a short distance, and settled down to work at once. The first thing I looked after was the cook and the kitchen.

As I got down to training, I patted myself on the back for picking out the sort of sparring partners that I had with me. They were a bully bunch of fellows, not only good professionally, but fine personally.

Things looked like they might go through all right until Johnson got to Havana. Then he ran into a bunch of ex-champions who filled him full of stories about the danger he would run by going on. They wanted him to stay in Havana and fight somebody for their benefit.

I'll say this for Johnson, however: Not one of them could get him to break his contract with Curley. A lot of them tried, but he just shook his head and said: "I'll not go back on my word."

But he was scared about Mexico. He was sure that the Carranza people would capture him and hold him for ransom, and even if he got by Carranza he didn't like the idea of putting himself in the power of the Villa crowd.

Jack Curley sweated a whole river during those days. He cabled Johnson at Havana, telling him to hire a boat for Tampico, where he could meet a Villa agent. He was to come by himself under another name and part of the trip from Tampico would have to be made by handcar and horseback.

"The fight's off," I said when I saw that cable. "He'll never come here."

"Why not?" said Jack.

"Because he's no fool," I said. "Why, I wouldn't make a trip like that myself."

I was right about it, too. Johnson cabled back that it was impossible for him to leave Havana just then, and asked Curley to come on and see him. He said in the wire that he would stick to his contract.

Jim Curley set out at once, confident that he would be able to bring Johnson on. There was a $40,000 advance sale, and it looked like the receipts would go over the $200,000 mark. But I made up my mind that the fight was off as far as Juarez was concerned.

However, I went on with my training. There was a lot of livestock on the place, and I tried my hand at busting a broncho, milking cows and doing some of the old farm chores that I used to have to do when I was a boy.

Some friends brought me a bear cub and I had a lot of fun out of the little monkey. Some of the Texans remembered how Fitzsimmons used to wrestle with a Great Dane, and wanted to give me one, but I said "No." Walter Monahan was all the Great Dane I needed.

One day there came a cable from Jack Curley saying that the officials had invited us to give our party there, and that he was sure we could get as much money in Havana as in Juarez.

I didn't think so, but what was there to do? I didn't care much, for all I wanted was a chance to fight Johnson, and whether Havana or Juarez made no difference to me. The training camp had to be broken up, some more money had to be hustled for our expenses, and all the advance sale had to be returned.

I was pretty sore, and I knew that there was just one thing that could put me back in good temper. That was a visit with my family. Tom Jones had a fit at first, but I explained that I couldn't sail for Havana without seeing my wife and the kiddies.

So I hopped on a train and went to Los Angeles. That short visit put heart into me, and when I left for Havana I was as happy and confident as ever.

(Tomorrow Willard will talk about his Havana experiences.)

AUSTRIANS HOLD OFF ITALIANS AT GORIZIA

GENEVA, July 30.—During the past two weeks the Italians have advanced five miles along the entire Isonzo front, says a private dispatch received here today. The Austrian losses are estimated at 80,000, but they have been more than made good by the arrival of more than five divisions of reinforcements.

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, July 30.—Reinforcements received by the Austrians at Gorizia, on the Isonzo front, have delayed the capture of that stronghold by the Italians, but military men predict that its fall is now only a matter of a few days.

The fighting on Carso plateau, south of Gorizia, has developed greater intensity, with the Austrians delivering violent counter attacks all along the line.

The positions which the Italians had captured were fiercely shelled, after which the Austrians tried to carry them at the point of the bayonet, but the attacks failed and the Austrians left hundreds of dead and wounded upon the field.

Bloody fighting is taking place in front of the Gorizia bridge head, where the Italians have suffered considerable losses, owing to the bravery of the troops. The men advanced with reckless courage in the teeth of terrific machine gun fire.

More guns are being sent to the Isonzo front to reinforce the batteries bombarding the forts of Gorizia.

Near the frontier of Tyrol, the Italians are attacking the Austrian positions. The Italian guns are slowly reducing the Austrian fortresses, but they are being subjected meanwhile to heavy fire from the Austrian pieces.

Police Drydock Holyoke Runaways

The ambitions of four Holyoke boys, who ran away from home to enlist in the navy were nipped today, when they were taken into custody by the Somerville police. They gave the names of Raymond M. Moriarty, fifteen years old, No. 72 Dwight street; Howard J. Crowley, fourteen years old, No. 123 Pine street; Dennis J. Reardon, fourteen years old, No. 5 School street, and John J. Shea, No. 714 Dwight street. They were sent back to their parents in Holyoke.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

The N. Y., N. H. & Hartford Railroad has installed a new platform for the unloading and handling of automobiles in the freight yards off Massachusetts avenue. They have arranged ample space for parking machines after unloading them and have in every way endeavored to provide a platform that will best suit the needs of the automobile trade.

Stops Runaways at Risk of Life

Joseph Hunt, of No. 44 Austin street, Charlestown, risked his life today when he stopped a pair of runaway horses attached to a caravan, owned by Youlden, Smith & Hopkins. The horses were running at full speed on Rutherford avenue, congested with traffic, when Hunt ran out and caught them by the bridle. He was dragged some distance and was taken to the Relief Station with a broken elbow.

GALLIVAN QUITS AS MAHONEY GETS PLUM

Mayor Curley, in announcing his appointment, said he had given Mahoney "free rein and full powers" in the department.

STORY OF CLASH.

The inside story of the Board of Health friction follows:

Dr. Mahoney and Dr. Mullowney have desks together in the health board's room.

Dr. Gallivan has a desk there, but never since Mayor Curley took office has it been opened.

If Dr. Gallivan were out on child hygiene work, he would call up the board's secretary, Dr. Slack. If there were a meeting of the board Dr. Gallivan would come to City Hall. He, and Dr. Mullowney and Dr. Mahoney would sit about the same table.

Never would they address one another personally—only officially. It would have been the most awkward situation imaginable, except that the members of the board had become so used to it.

Dr. Mahoney is 6 feet 6½ inches tall and weighs 380 pounds—about the combined weight of Dr. Mullowney and Dr. Gallivan.

Dr. Mahoney is yet to be approved as new health commissioner by the Civil Service Commission.

MAY SEEK NEW LINE.

It is stated that Dr. Gallivan may seek the direction of the child hygiene work in the schools, which is now in charge of the School Board.

Secretary of the present Health Board Slack was one of those to congratulate Dr. Mahoney today. Dr. Slack has been regarded by many as a friend of Dr. Gallivan. About nine-tenths of the health employes have always sided with Dr. Mahoney, the chairman of the present board.

There was some anxiety as to what might happen to the one-tenth later on, but friends of Dr. Mahoney said there probably would be no changes.

Hundreds of messages came to Dr. Mahoney today by telegraph, telephone and letter, congratulating him on his appointment. At his office there was a long line of employes and friend to extend their personal felicitations.

Dr. Gallivan is a graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Medical School. He is a practitioner in South Boston, where he has always lived. His work at the head of the bureau of child hygiene has attracted the attention of school and health authorities throughout the country.

OPINIONS VARY ON HUSBAND'S POCKETS

Right merrily runs the discussion of the question:

If a husband puts his money in his pocket and keeps it there, has his wife a right to pick that pocket at night?

Opinions differ. Bostonians, young and old, married and single, are talking about the ethics of picking "hubby's" pockets at night. Some think the wife has the right and some don't think so.

Miss Elsie Levine, a young Boston business woman, thinks the wife has a perfect right to pick her husband's pocket, provided he hasn't given her any money.

"I believe it is all right for a wife to pick her husband's pocket if he hasn't given her any money," says Miss Levine. "The money belongs to her as well as to him."

In some cases families are divided on the question. Where some wives say yes, their husbands say no—emphatically no.

For instance, there's John J. Dolan, well-known Boston lawyer, whose home is in Brighton.

He says no.

There's his wife.

She says yes.

The discussion began when Winslow I. Wentworth told the Brockton Court that his wife picked his pockets. The wife admitted it, and said she did so on her lawyer's advice, because that was the only way she could get any money. Here are some Boston statements on the subject:

JOHN J. DOLAN, Brighton, Boston lawyer:

Absolutely no! Legally a woman has no right to pick or search her husband's pockets.

She has no more right to take money from his pockets than she has to go to the bank and draw his account.

While the courts would probably never try such a case, the right would rest with the husband to prosecute if he desired, just as would the woman if he took her property.

MRS. JOHN J. DOLAN, Brighton:

Surely a woman has the right to go through her husband's pockets. It may not be good policy, and may lead to deception on his part, but she certainly has the right to what is his if she wants it. Hasn't the woman had that same privilege from years back?

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were fairly strong this afternoon, the greatest improvement being in railroad shares. The majority of industrials which are in the limelight because of munition contracts were then above their low for the day, Bethlehem having recovered most of its decline, but they were inclined to be unsteady. They were the most active issues all day. Trading was of large volume in New York but that market was not so active as during the two previous days.

Among the last hour gains were Allis Chalmers 3⅛, Crucible 1⅛, General Electric ¼, Republic Iron 1, Studebaker ⅝, Westinghouse 1¾, Air Brake 3, Inspiration 1½, Utah ⅞, Union Pacifis ⅝, Southern Pacific ⅛, Rock Island 2, Reading 1⅛, Northern Pacific ⅝, New Haven 1, N. Y. Central ¼, "Mop" ⅝, "Katy" 1, Lehigh Valley 1⅞, Chesapeake and Ohio ¾, Canadian Pacific ¼, Baltimore and Ohio, ex-dividend ⅜ and Atchison, ex-dividend ⅛.

Among losses were American Can ¼, U. S. Steel ¼, American Locomotive 2, Baldwin 1, Bethlehem Steel 5, General Motors 4, Goodrich ½, Mexican Petroleum 1½, American Car ⅝, Colorado Fuel 1⅜, Great Northern Ore ⅞, Anaconda ½, St. Paul 2, American Sugar 1 and American Smelting ¼. Prices ranged higher at the opening of the market, but there was heavy profit taking and a recession soon followed.

In Boston Alaska Gold was off 1¼, Butte & Superior 2½, American Zinc ⅝, Calumet & Hecla 4, Granby ¾, Greene-Cananea ½, Tamarack 1⅜ and Wolverine ½. Gains included Elevated ⅛, Copper Range 1⅛, North Butte ⅝, New Haven ⅜ and Ventura Oil ⅝.

WAR STOCKS NOT SO HIGH.

War stocks did not continue to break records as a class, although Westinghouse reached a new high. Bethlehem went up six points at the opening and Crucible made a big gain. Later Bethlehem dropped until it showed a loss of twelve and then recovered. War stocks were erratic at times in a market that was nervous and of big scope. Around half a million shares were traded in during the morning. Railroads were irregular, but improved in tone by afternoon. Crop prospects, hopes of a freight rate raise and reports that trade is expanding in this country helped many of them. The dividend reduction adversely affected St. Paul. It was off four points at one time. The trend of war issues was uncertain and at times they had a wide price range. The steel merger rumor was still circulated in the face of all denials. One statement about Bethlehem is that its war munition contracts ought to enable it to earn $500 a share on common.

LOCAL TRADING WAS SLACK.

Trading in the local market had no more breadth or activity than has been the rule of late. Copper and zinc shares seem to be waiting on metals. One of the biggest producers cut the price of lead today. Spelter has a downward tendency, and there is little demand for copper. In London copper prices were unchanged, as was the spelter quotation. Lead was 7s. 6d. lower. Butte & Superior was a weak issue in Boston. Ventura was strong and active.

Back Pictures Can Be Obtained NOW!

For the convenience of those who desire them, back pictures can be obtained by sending to the American Promotion Dept., No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, 1c for each daily picture and 5c for each Sunday picture. Mail orders will not be filled unless accompanied by return postage.

The Contest Plan

Each day, for 85 consecutive days, a picture will be printed in the Daily and Sunday American. Contestants must supply each picture with a title, using the title of a Play, that shall be most fitting and appropriate, describing it most completely or fitting it most perfectly. The one supplying the greatest number of such "most fitting and appropriate" titles shall earn the first award; the one supplying the next greatest number shall earn the next award, etc.

There will be no book of titles to buy. An official List of Play Titles will appear each week in the Sunday American during the contest. This list will be the standard for contestants to use in selecting the titles for the pictures appearing during the seven days beginning with each Sunday Official List Publication, and all titles selected for that week's seven pictures must be among those in and selected from this list.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Randidge, Forsyth, Lane; Names for Boston to Be Proud Of

Three Generous Men, Splendidly Thoughtful of the Children, Have Set the Rest of Us a Good Example

BY all rights, Mr. Frederick L. Lane, general manager of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, should be ONE of the happiest men in Boston. ALL Bostonians are happy, it goes without saying, but there are degrees of happiness.

Mr. Lane, by placing one of the splendid boats of his famous line at the disposal of the city government, has made it possible for the little children of the tenements to enjoy the Randidge Fund Excursions. Mr. Lane has also made it possible for our esteemed city fathers to cover up one of many acts of almost unbelievable shortsightedness, but that is another story.

The Randidge Fund is one of the hundred distinctive things that make Boston Boston. It belongs with the Floating Hospital, the Children's Hospital and the Forsyth Dental Infirmary as one of the things Boston MIGHT boast about if Boston were given to boasting.

George Randidge, twenty years ago or more, was a merchant tailor in Temple place. His home was in Commonwealth avenue. He left an estate of $100,000, half of it in trust to the city of Boston. It was the expressed desire of Mr. Randidge that the income of this $50,000 should be expended annually in giving children "of all denominations" a midsummer outing.

We should like to know MORE about George Randidge. If one of our older readers will write us an account of his life we shall be glad to print it. Very likely the Story of Randidge has been printed before, but a new generation is growing up, and the younger folks, we are sure, would like to be informed about this wonderful man who was so splendidly thoughtful of little children.

Two weeks ago the AMERICAN discovered that 1915's Randidge Fund Excursions had been lost or mislaid. The municipal steamboat Monitor was out of commission. There was something the matter with her boilers. The Common Council apppeared reluctant to appropriate money for repairs deemed necessary by federal officers.

Commissioner David B. Shaw reported to the AMERICAN that the Randidge money available amounted to $2,300. This amount, Mr. Shaw said, would barely pay the steamboat or trolley fares of as many children as should be cared for, leaving nothing for refreshment and entertainment.

The AMERICAN was the first newspaper to call attention to this situation, which has been met for the time being by the public-spirited action of the general manager of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company. The excursions, delayed throughout one of the two "vacation" months by councilmanic inactivity, have been begun and will bring pleasure to thousands. We congratulate Mr. Lane on the promptness with which he has taken advantage of an enviable opportunity; we congratulate Mr. Shaw, and we congratulate the children. All Boston is to be congratulated on the possession of a Frederick L. Lane among her men of business.

Meanwhile, we suppose the city of Boston continues to pay $50 or more per diem for the use of a substitute for the steamboat Monitor, to make the daily rounds of the penal institutions in the harbor. The council having finally made an appropriation for repairs, we hope the Monitor will be made seaworthy before the children are taken down the harbor upon her.

We mentioned the Floating Hospital as one of the institutions of which all Bostonians are proud. The Randidge Fund is for healthy and happy children, to make them healthier and happier. The Floating Hospital is for babies who are ill. Nothing of like character in the United States is so splendid as Boston's Floating Hospital, maintained by the free-will offerings of the generous. Mr. G. Loring Briggs of No. 54 Devonshire street is manager of the Floating Hospital.

We cannot all be George Randidges or Thomas Alexander Forsyths, but, each according to his means, ALL can help the Floating Hospital.

Letters from American Readers

VITAL AND PATRIOTIC.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Permit me to express my appreciation of your patriotic editorial in last Monday's issue of your paper.

Of all the editorials I have read in relation to our diplomatic correspondence with Germany, yours was the most vital. It had a sermon-like touch. It preached a glorious gospel. I believe it was more truly representative of American sentiment than anything I have read since the war began. It followed closely the splendid thoughts already expressed by Mr. Hearst.

Compensation will come to you from the good that it will do in the leavening of hatred, by making us think and know that we are able to and ought to deal with Germany and other countries at war in a manner that will not fail to give us the prestige of being what we pretend to be—a people with ideals which exalt a nation.

WENDELL PHILLIPS THORE.

ONLY OUR RIGHTS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I wish to express my appreciation of your editorial of July 13 entitled "Insist upon our rights and only our rights."

Yours truly,
C. V. BOWMAN,

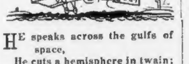
MAN

HOW wonderful is man! He rides
Beneath the waves and in the air;
He puts a harness on the tides,
And finds his sorrow hard to bear
When he begins to lose his hair.



HE speaks across the gulfs of space,
He cuts a hemisphere in twain;
He moves the mountain from its base,
And for a woman who is vain
He loses all he hoped to gain.

HOW wonderful is man! He strives
To overcome all human ills;
He labors well in saving lives,
And then he goes to war and fills
The trenches with the men he kills.

THE BEAUTY

NO servants will rush to obey her,
No gossips will mention her name;
In a world that is small she is mistress of all
The gladness a woman may claim.

SHE will never be known in high places,
No artist will sigh as he tries
To portray with his brush her proud smile or her blush,
Or paint the soft depths of her eyes.

SHE will add to no glittering pageant,
But she has no regrets to evince,
For a fool who knows not how the wonder was wrought
Has taught her to think him a prince.

Evidence of Success

"I often fear," he said, "that my life has been a failure."

"It is foolish of you ever to be troubled by such a thought," she replied. "You wife is one of the best dressed women in this town."

Will Bear Watching

"Why are you so suspicious of him?"

"He has taken pains to tell me at least a dozen times within the past day or two that he is my friend."

Cossacks, Europe's Most Picturesque Fighters

"APPRENTICED to Mars at birth, as were the Spartans before them, the Cossacks, survivals from a non-industrial world, are the most picturesque fighters on Europe's battlefields.

"A frontier's folk, like the people of our early West; a mixture of many adventurous elements and constituting within their own country a class more distinctive than that of the American cowboy, they have finally been subdued to the needs of the great imperial government at Petrograd, taken over just as they were into its machinery and preserved as a soldier-caste. A wild, conquering, freebooting folk, the Cossacks have been brought within the fold of Russian civilization as soldiers, descendants of warriors and progenitors of generations of soldiers, to meet the future needs of the Slav empire."

It is with these Cossacks, the men who, in the leisure of national peace, conquered the vast empire of Siberia for Russia, and who, in each Russian war for the last one hundred years, have formed the Czar's irresistible first-line strength that today's statement of the National Geographical Society deals. More nearly defining this military folk, the statement continues:

"The Cossacks are the rough riders of Europe. As the cowboys of the American plains and the gauchos of the Pampas, the Cossacks are an intensely interesting, wild, free, plain folk, who live in the saddle in the open places and whose rough democracy is the expression of the same naive, rudimentary culture as that of their New World brothers-in-spirit.

"To be born a Cossack is to be born a soldier. Every Cossack bears the obligation of twenty years' military service. It is the picked men from his ranks who constitute the Imperial Guard, a body of the finest type of fighters, whom the Czar can trust when he can trust no one else around him. These Cossack soldiers have been the greatest terror with which Russia has been able to threaten Europe; they have been the empire's most efficient internal police, and they have marched eastward or to the Pacific and southward to the zone of British influence conquering for the Czar a vast domain, including many nations."

In-Shoots

The dead town is invariably orderly.

The majority of those ideal husbands seldom work at it.

The eye to skin some one is frequently called "an eye to business."

It is useless to bury the hatchet and keep the hammer working.

A woman with a secret in her breast is always more or less uneasy.

Life's Humble Heroes

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

WE hear much nowadays of the sins, weaknesses and follies of human nature. Whoever breaks a law of God or man is held up to the public eye as a warning. Human frailties and derelictions are described and deplored. Meantime there are many humble heroes whose shining virtues and whose great moral strength are passed by in silence.

A letter just received from one of these heroes (who in this instance is a heroine) seems too remarkable a human document to be kept from the world.

The letter was written by a woman who has been mentioned before in this column; a woman who, for more than twenty years, has been stricken with paralysis, organic heart trouble and other maladies which have made her a great sufferer, and for the larger portion of that time have made walking, or even sitting, impossible. Just now she is able to crawl about her rooms and perform the duties of nurse to her husband, who is dying of an incurable malady.

Speaking of another woman who has been afflicted with many troubles, she says:

"I think I have been able to help her a little by my letters. I am grateful to be able to be useful, when I am deluged in unbidden tears myself. I am just waiting now for the turn of the tide. My husband cannot recover, he grows weaker and thinner by the minute.

"Dear, my hand is very lame and tired, and that's why I write poorly and make blots. Well, I am helping my husband on his journey, anyway. He didn't know how to face and overcome obstacles through the years past, but he is the bravest soul I have ever known in this ordeal. He must slowly starve and bear torture with his illness, but he only says: 'Sis, what is it? What does it mean?' I restore his confidence; I play the game according to my own rules. It rests me, just to be a prop to others. They must see God in what I do as I am led.

"I am sleeping not more than four hours in twenty-four. I am sole nurse—he will have no other. There is much to do. Isn't it good I can do it? The physician tells me: 'You cannot do it.' I answer, 'Much you know about it.' The doctor just said, 'There's a very short time for my dear one on earth.' The words come to me.

"'Happy to meet, sorry to part; happy to meet again.'

"Dear, there's light ahead."

This letter was written by Mattie Gammon, Riverside, R. I., in a house she calls "Sunny Shack." This woman ought to receive the Carnegie medal for bravery. It could not be better bestowed. Men of the cloth ought to turn to her for knowledge of the source from which she obtains her wonderful power, and whoever has a heart or appreciation of a great spirit ought to write to this woman and extend the right hand of fellowship.

She is a lesson in faith, courage and hope for all of us.

Twenty years of extreme physical suffering, increasing poverty and hardships innumerable, and yet to be able to show such a spirit as this letter indicates is indeed a revelation of divine power. All honor to Mattie Gammon.

Science for Workers

By Edgar Lucien Larkin

ON one of the arches of the San Francisco Exposition appears this inscription:

"The Universe: An Infinite Sphere, the Centre Everywhere, the Circumference Nowhere."

A letter from a San Francisco seeker of knowledge asks me for an explanation of the inscription.

Nothing is known of the universe save the portion within range of the largest telespectroscope, which reveals the chemical composition of every sun sending light in sufficient quantity to be analyzed; within range of the largest telecamera, which photographs all suns bright enough to send light able to imprint excessively minute points and dots on the sensitive plates—about 100,000,000 so far photographed; and within range of high mathematics, which senses the existence of invisible matter enough to make several billions of suns like those now photographed.

Pascal is the originator of the sentence inscribed over the portal at the fair. He came near discovering the calculus before Newton and Leibnitz. Had he done so, and kept on exploring its mighty powers, he would have made the sign of infinity, the symbol of infinity, looking like a figure 8 turned over on its side.

The inscription of twelve words of sixty-nine letters need not be written; all can be condensed into one character or symbol. It means unthinkable and that there is no use in thus wasting time. This sign has saved time enough, no doubt, to make a century. None knows whether space is infinite, or whether space is a sphere, or whether the congeries of billions of suns occupy a spherical part of space. So much for infinity. None is able to think of a billion suns, or a hundred million—both finite—not even a master. No one can ever commence to think of the far greater quantity of dark and invisible matter now known to exist, and to be the cause of unthinkable speeds of "runaway" suns, flying under the attraction of this giant mass at velocities of 200 to 250 miles per second. And it is finite.

Q.—"What is a logarithm? How is it that a logarithm simplifies mathematical computations? Will you kindly give an example to make the explanation more clear?"—J. P. E.

A.—A logarithm is an exponent, and an exponent is a number showing how many times another number has been used in any multiplication. Ten times ten equals 100. It was used twice, and its exponent is 2. Ten cubed equals 1,000, and its exponent is 3; while 10 to exponent 4 equals 10,000, and so on out toward infinity. But suppose that we wish to use 10, say, 1¼ times or 1⅝ times instead of twice. Then the exponent must be computed, and exponents thus computed are always printed in tables. Thus, as I am now writing, the paper, as always, by day and by night, is very near a precious book, a table of logarithms for all numbers from 1 to 108,000, computed out to 7 decimal places. To give examples of their use, suppose that you wish to multiply 8 by 11. Look in the table and you will find the logarithm of 8 to be .9030900, and the logarithm of 11 to be 1.0413927. Add these and the sum will be 1.9444827. Look along the column and it will be seen that this is the logarithm of 88.

Easy. But suppose you wish to multiply two strings of figures of from 5 to a dozen. In the great standard mathematical sciences, such as astronomy, physics and chemistry, the multiplication and division of immense numbers are required. Thus, let us square the number 31558149—that is, multiply itself by itself, a tedious job. But this toil can be saved by the use of logarithms. Thus, the logarithm of 31558149 is 7.4991289, taken directly from the table. Then, to square any number, multiply its logarithm by 2 equals 14.9982578. Now, by looking in the table, the number of which this is the logarithm is 99591692096951. Hours of work are performed in a few minuts.
